Japanese Deny Constructing Super-Warships

WON'T REVEAL NAVAL PLANS, U. S. INFORMED

Nippon 'Sorry' But Details of Sea Strength to Be Kept Secret, Ministry Says.

PRESS HITS 'HAUGHTINESS'

Strongly Criticizes Demands of America, Britain, France For Sending Demands.

(By International News Service)

TOKYO—Except for denying she is building or intends to build 43,000-ton battleships, Japan today "regretfully" declined the request of the United States, Great Britain and France for information on her naval plans.

In the midst of a storm of press and governmental accusations against the foreign powers for their virtual ultimatum demanding naval information, the foreign office merely issued a perfunctory denial of the 43,000-ton battleship reports.

Papers Elaborate.

But at the same time, Japanese newspapers quoted the navy ministry as saying:

"After serious consideration, the government has reached the conclusion that there is no necessity for informing other nations of its naval plans."

The papers added that the government felt "very sorry."

To all requests for amplification of his simple denial, the foreign office spokesman turned a deaf ear.

But he did pledge, with what seemed to be an attempt to mollify occidental opinion, that Japan was ever-ready "to consider any proposals based on the fundamental principles of non-menace and non-aggression."

The foreign office spokesman thus answered two of the questions asked concurrently by America, Britain, and France, but much of his friendly tone was drowned out in the reported decision of high naval officials, at a meeting today, to keep Japan's naval plans a secret.

Newspapers dug deep into their

CRASH KILLS 6

Old Auto Stalls on Crossing, Wrecks Passenger Train.

BENTON, Ark.—(AP)—An old model automobile stalled on the Missouri Pacific's main line tracks at a country-road crossing yesterday and wrecked "the Texan," fast passenger train eastbound from Dallas to St. Louis, bringing death to six persons.

The victims, crushed and scalded as the front part of the train piled up, were three members of the train crew and three passengers. A half dozen others aboard the train, carrying 77 passengers, suffered minor injuries.

Two youths who had been riding in the automobile scrambled to safety just ahead of the crash after frantic efforts to push the machine off the tracks.

Two baggage cars, four day coaches and two pullmans left the rails.

Dr. Rehder is shown here as he gave the vaccine "shot" to Harold R. Ditwiler, 63 North Weldon avenue, while scores of others wait their turns.

DEATH STRIKES RUBBER KING

Harvey S. Firestone, 69, Found Dead In Bed at Winter Home In Miami Beach.

(By International News Service)

MIAMI, Fla.—Harvey Samuel Firestone, famed rubber magnate and close friend of Henry Ford and the late Thomas A. Edison, was found dead in bed at his palatial winter home in Miami Beach early today.

He was 69 years old last December 20.

The brief announcement of his death was made by his son, Russell. The rubber king died in his sleep, it was said, but the announcement did not give the cause of his death.

The announcement by the son said funeral plans have not yet been completed but added that the body will be returned to Akron, O., his home, for burial.

Firestone arrived at his winter home, Harbel Villa, only a few weeks ago, bringing with him a

Five union lieutenants, headed by Philip Murray, SWOC chairman, were delegated to negotiate with the steel officials.

Phone Calls Warn Parents Of Need of Immunization

Simpson Teachers Work All Day In Effort to Get 1,300 Pupils In School Vaccinated.

There was little rest Sunday for Supt. W. L. Miller of Mansfield schools; his secretary, Miss Evelyn Newbright, and teachers at John Simpson Junior high school who worked most of the day to help stem the spread of smallpox in the city.

Following the discovery of a case of the malady in the John Simpson student body, virtually every parent of the more than 1,300 pupils in the school was called by telephone or contacted personally and told of the danger of infection. Acting on the order of the city-county health department, school officials and teachers warned parents to have their children immunized at once.

It was estimated at Supt. Miller's office today that 200 calls were made Sunday from there. The others were handled by Miss Naomi Stutz, secretary to the principal at John Simpson school, and teachers in the school who could be reached by telephone.

Includes Superintendents.

The wholesale immunization against possible smallpox infection extended to Supt. Miller and Boyd Robinson, county superintendent of schools, and members of their immediate staffs.

Miss Neubright and Miss Ann Arron of Supt. Miller's office and Miss Leota Pittenger, secretary to Supt. Robinson, were immunized today and both Miller and Robinson planned to submit to vaccinations this afternoon.

The superintendents had been vaccinated before, but they weren't taking any chances, they said.

The county superintendent's staff was enlisted for service today to distribute notices to the parents of more than 4,000 rural school pupils in the county.

Prepared for distribution by Miss Pittenger, the notices requesting the parents' consent for immunization of their children, were delivered to superintendents throughout the county by Supt. Robinson and H. J. Sir Louis, county attendance officer.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Anna Marie Hahn, convicted poison slayer, lost her fight in the Ohio court of appeals today to escape a sentence of death in the electric chair when three judges of the court concurred that she had a fair trial.

In a 16-page opinion, Judges Simon Ross, Francis Hamilton and Stanley Matthews wrote:

"We find * * * that no error has intervened to her prejudice.

Mrs. Hahn was convicted Nov. 6 of the death by poison of Jacob Wagner, one of four elderly acquaintances of the German born blond to die in what the state contended was a scheme to "murder for profit."

She is under sentence to die March 10.

Tells How He Killed 2 Youths Demanding To See Daughter

(By Associated Press)

PORTSMOUTH—A 50-year old father's story of how he shot and killed two men on the front porch of his home after they demanded to see one of his daughters was written into police records here today.

Police Capt. Lee Startzman said that John Walker told him he fired twice with a double-barrelled shotgun and that Walter Stewart, 24, and Henry Wright, 23, both of Portsmouth, collapsed and died.

Startzman quoted Walker as saying he shot after the men came to his home a second time last night and insisted that he call his daughter Mildred, 23, or "We'll kill you." Then, Walker added, the men "made a move toward their pockets." Walker was held pending an investigation. Also in custody was Joe Powell, 24, who, Startzman said he had been informed, was with Stewart and Wright until shortly before the shooting.

Walker related to the police official that the two men, whom he said he did not know, appeared at his home early in the night and asked for Mildred. Walker told them she was "asleep and wasn't seeing anybody."

The men departed and he retired, Walker continued. Several hours later, he said, another daughter, Ruth, 19, came to his room and informed him "those men are back again and pounding on the front door."

Walker told Startzman that he rose from bed and went to the door, picking up a shotgun on the way.

ORDERS 6,600 PUPILS IN CITY IMMUNIZED

Health Commissioner Acts In Effort to Check Spread of Smallpox Outbreak.

4 NEW CASES REPORTED

School Board Calls For Vaccination of Entire Public Staff and Students.

Mandatory vaccination for all pupils of all public, parochial and private schools in Mansfield was ordered by Health Commissioner Roy C. Rehder, as officials sought to stem the tide of a smallpox outbreak today. The order will affect some 6,600 pupils.

The commissioner's order was approved at an emergency noon meeting today of the city school board at the office of Superintendent W. L. Miller, as it affected public school pupils.

The only exemption allowed, according to Dr Rehder, will be on proof of vaccination within the past five years, or proof of immunization due to a previous attack.

Expands Previous Order.

Today's order was an expansion of a previous health board order, calling for vaccination of all pupils in John Simpson and Madison schools, the two institutions in which cases of smallpox have been [illegible]

Over the week-end, city and county health officials vaccinated at the city building more than 1,300 persons, some of them adults and many of them pupils.

Today's order, issued by the school board said:

"All pupils, teachers and employes of public schools in Mansfield must be vaccinated immediately, or provide a doctor's certificate of successful vaccination during the last five years, or proof of immunization due to a previous attack of smallpox."

Calls for Certificates.

Supt. W. L. Miller said pupils would be dismissed during school hours to permit immunization by their family physicians He added that each pupil must submit a certificate to the principal of the school showing proof of vaccination.

Those who refuse to comply with the order, according to Dr.

HUNT KILLERS

Police Check Clues as Boy Finds 2 Slain In Auto.

NEW YORK—(AP)—"At least two" persons were sought by police today as the slayers who throttled a man and a woman found dead in an automobile on Brooklyn's remote Shore road yesterday.

The victims were identified as Mrs. Christine Oliveri, 24, mother of two children, missing since Jan. 28, and Nino Columbo, 41, also married and the father of two, who had not been seen by his wife for several days. They had been dead possibly three days.

"There were at least two slayers," said Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine. There were evidences of a frantic struggle in the disheveled car

Scratches on both victims indicated they had fought their attackers in the struggle.

Columbo had a police record of 10 arrests on charges ranging from vagrancy to extortion, and two convictions, one for robbery and another for burglary.

A. F. OF L. OUSTS 3 CIO UNIONS

Executive Council Expels Mine Workers, Glass Body, and Smelters.

(By United Press)

MIAMI—The American Federation of Labor executive council today expelled from membership in the federation three Committee for Industrial Organization unions. At the same time President William Green of the federation resigned his membership in the United Mine Workers union.

The drastic council action brings to a new climax the bitter intra-labor feud between the CIO, led by John L. Lewis, and the federation. The council revoked the charters of the United Mine Workers union—which Lewis heads and to which Green had long belonged—the Federation of Flat Glass Workers and the International Union of Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers.

Green declared in announcement of the council action that he believed hope of peace between the federation and the CIO at any time in the near future has gone.

Three expelled unions have an estimated membership of 680,000. The UMW has been the keystone of the CIO since its formation. The other two unions are smaller but have been active in the CIO drive.

'General' Coxey, 84 Today, Says Getting Old All 'Imagination'

(By Associated Press)

MASSILLON—"General" Jacob S. Coxey won't grow old at 84.

"Getting old is all imagination," declares the man who led an "army" of unemployed on Washington in 1894.

"I'm like the women—I never count my years" And the "general" started talking of a trip west to see about mining venture.

In steady, determined tones, Coxey insists that issuance of non-interest bearing bonds is the solution to this nation's depression-recession woes. He has said so for 44 years. His proposed legislation has been introduced in congress 12 times.

Some term Coxey's idea inflation; Andrew W. Mellon as secretary of the treasury called it a "flat money" scheme; but Coxey patiently answers back:

"The government owes the people money at cost. Interest charges should be abolished."

First Plant Operator Resigns, J. R. Turner Takes Over Post Hour Later.

COUNCIL OPPOSITION SEEN

Members Indicate They May Balk at Mayor's Plan to Hire Technical Aid.

A series of swiftly moving developments over the week-end had resulted today in the resignation of J. P. Sotherland as superintendent of the new Mansfield sewage disposal plant, the appointment of J. R. Turner, 49, of 136 Rae avenue to succeed him and the indication that there may be a tendency on the part of some council members to oppose those two moves.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter, acting on recommendations he received last week from the state board of health, and on the suggestions of George B. Sowers, Cleveland, the designing engineer of the plant, asked for and received Sotherland's resignation. Sotherland has been the sewage plant engineer since it began operation last March, but has not had the necessary experience to qualify as a Class A operator, which the state board had insisted the city should employ. Sowers, in his letter, also recommended the appointment of an experienced engineer.

Takes Post Immediately.

Within an hour after Sotherland had submitted his resignation, Hunter had appointed Turner to the post and he had taken [illegible] field Saturday afternoon and conferred with Turner and the mayor at the sewage plant.

Turner is a chemical engineer, having received his degree at Purdue university in 1912. However, he does not at present hold state engineer's license, but said he had made application for one, and planned to take an examination to obtain it.

Turner has had no experience as a sewage plant operator, although for eight years, from 1912 to 1920, he was employed by the William B. Scaife and Sons company, of Pittsburgh, where he was an erecting engineer, dividing his time between designing, constructing and superintending the

Ickes' Shake-Up To Give West New Job, Capital Hears

WASHINGTON—(UP)— Reports circulated in the capital today that Charles West, $10,000-per-year under secretary of interior who reportedly is in disfavor with his superior, Harold L. Ickes, shortly may be transferred to a new post.

The reports suggested that West may assume one of several positions—ranging from comptroller of the currency to a membership on the national bituminous coal commission. There was no official comment on the various rumors

The reports of West's transfer developed after Ickes stripped him of his office personnel in a sudden series of transfers. Ickes conferred Saturday with President Roosevelt, and administration sources said the president indicated he would support him in his shake-up of the under-secretary's staff.

Since his appointment in 1935 as under-secretary, West also has served as Mr. Roosevelt's personal representative on capitol hill. It generally was understood that his duties in the interior department were secondary to his legislative work for the administration.

West formerly served Richland county and the balance of the 17th congressional district as its representative in Congress.

—Advice—

Attitude Has Big Part In Religion

By VIRGINIA LEE

CHARLES P. STEWART, Washington columnist, observed my recent article to a young couple worried because of religious differences. He has taken the trouble to relate his own experiences, which show that what I advised is true: that broadminded, tolerant folk can solve the difficulty satisfactorily.

This is what Mr. Stewart writes:

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Virginia Lee, writer of a column of advice to young folk, recently answered one of her querists to the effect that a suitor and his girl friend, of different religions, should at least think twice before marrying, if their respective faiths are very deep-seated.

Even if they don't clash between themselves, Virginia suggests, how will they bring up their children?

My own experience hints that they needn't worry.

His Religious Training.

My father was a Methodist. My mother was an Episcopalian. My religious training was betwixt-and-between. There never was any row about it. My mother was tolerant of Methodism. My father declared himself outright friendly to Episcopalianism—because, as he said, "It never interferes in politics or religion."

I never became formally identified with either creed, but I classified as a Protestant.

Nevertheless, I married into the Roman Catholic church.

As marriages go, ours has been a fair success. Our last anniversary was our fortieth and we're not divorced yet, regardless of religion.

Priest Consulted.

Of course, as a preliminary to matrimony, we consulted the Rev. Father Timothy V. Treacy.

Having extremely little prejudice in such matters, I expressed a willingness to become a Catholic, if desired. To be sure, it would have been a mere form, and Father Treacy knew it. He said "no"; he preferred a genuine Protestant to a perfunctory Catholic. Pretty liberal, I considered it.

However, if we had children, he specified, they must be Catholics.

Afterwards.

Thus far, everything lovely. Father Treacy performed the ceremony.

My wife and I never had a child, that lived, until after our nineteenth anniversary.

Then we had a beautiful little daughter; still living I'm a grandpa.

When that baby was born, "How," said I (a Protestant) to my wife, (a Catholic), "about your pledge to Father Treacy? This child is due to be brought up a Catholic."

"Oh," answered my wife, "I think that pledge is outlawed."

Haven't my wife and I dwelt together in a fair degree of harmony for four decades?

Need religious differences of opinion signify!

Eggs should always be cooked over a low fire. If poaching eggs keep the water below boiling, if frying them let them cook slowly, pouring the fat over the yolk to cook the film of white which covers it or cover the pan And even when boiling eggs hard the cooking water is kept well below boiling to insure a tender evenly cooked egg.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I realized htat Mary had "planned her campaign" to good advantage before her grandmother, whom I had escorted to her room, fairly made her way to her idolized granddaughter's bedside

She was sitting up in bed with plenty of pillows piled up behind her. Miss Whitlock had invested her with a crimson jacket, and a close scrutiny told me that Mary herself had used her knowledge of theatrical make-up to good effect. It was no pallid invalid who met her grandmother's eyes, but a young woman whose eyes sparkled and whose cheeks apparently wore the rosy flush of health.

"Oh! Granzie Darling!" Mary caroled as her grandmother came through the door, "how sweet of you to come to see me! Come over here and let me have a good look at you. These jailers of mine won't let me out of bed, or I'd come over to you. How perfectly scrumptious you look! What I'd give for your complexion! But they aren't passing 'em out these days."

Her grandmother gave the effect of "bridling and blushing" without doing either.

"We didn't smear paint and powder all over our faces, stopping up the pores, when I was young," she said loftily. "We knew how to take care of our faces. But that isn't important. What's this I hear about your going to New York this afternoon?"

Before she answered, Mary put out her hands and drew her grandmother's face down to her own, kissing her warmly.

"It seems providential, your coming in just now," she said. "I was just going to ask if you couldn't come when Auntie Madge told me that you were going to be here in a few minutes. I do so want to tell you how I feel about going to New York. You see Miss Whitlock and Auntie Madge are regular doubting Thomasinas about my going. They haven't come right out and said I couldn't go, but I know what they're thinking. But I knew if I could only get you up here and tell you how I feel about it, you'd understand. And, after all, you're the last word in authority as far as I'm concerned. You always have been. Remember how you used to put me on a chair, when I was bad, and I didn't dare get up, no matter who told me I could, until you let me up yourself? And yet, I never was afraid of you the way some children are of their grandmothers. There never was such a darling granzie as you"

The leaven was working. I could see it in the gratified look her grandmother bent on her at the tribute, which I knew, despite Mary's ulterior use of it, was sincere and deserved.

"I know you'll understand how I feel," the plaintive, beautifully-modulated voice went on. "I've told you more about Noel—and the rest of it—than I have anybody else."

There was a slight flicker in her eyelids toward me, and I knew that she was telling me she was exaggerating this particular statement.

Mary Wins Point.

"I shall go out of my mind if I have to stay here another day, I do believe, Granzie," Mary went on, and her voice would have "coaxed the birds off their nests." I knew the next instant that she had caught the hurt, piqued look which flashed into her grandmother's face, for she put out her hands appealingly.

"You know why, don't you, Granzie?" she pleaded. "You know if it weren't for the way Noel had to go back, and my feeling the way I do about what his father is doing, I'd ask nothing better than to stay right here with you. But I've got to go to work in a day or two, anyway, and today I'm so upset and nervous and miserable that I could tear myself to pieces. I know you'll understand. You always knew me better than anyone else did."

"Of course I understand, my darling," she said with decision, and then she turned briskly to Miss Whitlock.

"May I ask," she said a bit truculently, "just why you disapprove of my grandaughter's going to New York today?"

There was something in the nurse's eyes as she glanced at me which had all the effect of a wink. "I don't disapprove, now," she said. "A little while ago I was afraid she was too much fatigued to make the effort today. But she seems to have rallied marvelously. If you approve, I see no reason why she should not go today."

THAT final clinch and kiss in the fadeout of a picture is in an ebb tide right now, according to Director Ernest Lubitsch, noted for his film subtleties. Not that you won't see a clinch now and then and a fadeout kiss, but they are on the wane. "Audiences have seen two people in each other's arms so many times that it is like seeing the same old thing over and over, and for another thing present day audiences demand something more deft, more subtle than a kiss or a clinch to indicate a happy ending" he said recently. His current production is "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" with Claudette Colbert and Gary Cooper, and it is safe to assume there will be few clinches in this madcap story.

Talent In "Man Proof."

Of the four major players in "Man Proof," three are seasoned stage players and one is strictly a product of the screen. Myrna Loy is a Montana girl who went to Hollywood from school and who was befriended by the late Rudolph Valentino and his second wife, Natacha Rambova. Rosalind Russell, who plays the wife in the fourpoint problem, has run the stage gamut from tent shows to Broadway hits. Franchot Tone, Cornell graduate, went from Greenwich Village plays to New York stage and then to pictures, while Walter Pidgeon, who plays the husband, is a Canadian World war veteran and began his stage career in stock. The quartet brings its combined talents to "Man Proof," which is current at the Madison theater.

Hepburn Returns.

Katherine Hepburn returns to the screen in "Stage Door" after an unsuccessful try at the legitimate stage. Although she came to the screen a few years ago from a big hit, "The Warrior's Husband," she failed to please in "The Lake," her recent venture, or "Jane Eyre," an earlier one. Her failure and that of Fredric March who recently dropped $60,000 into a stage experiment, has discouraged all other Hollywoodites with a yen for the footlights. Hepburn plays an ambitious stage struck girl in "Stage Door," opposite Ginger Rogers, with a theatrical rooming house as a background. Adolphe Menjou has a role suited to his talents as the producer who mixes romance with business. Gail Patrick, Andrea Leed and Lucille Ball share honors with the top notchers in the cast. "Stage Door" is at the Ohio.

Star Is Born.

For its mid-week program the Majestic presents one of the ten best pictures of the year, "A Star Is Born," a technicolor drama of the heartbreak that goes into the making of a great star. Janet Gaynor has one of the best roles of her career as the unknown extra girl who gets a break, while Fredric March does one of his finest pieces of acting as the decadent masculine movie idol whose star goes into decline as Miss Gaynor's rises. Adolphe Menjou, May Robson, Andy Devine, Lionel Stander, Edgar Kennedy head a long list of supporting players. "City Girl" with Ricardo Cortez, Phyllis Brooks and Robert Wilcox is the second feature.

"High, Wide and Handsome."

The strife and courage that marked the birth of the American oil industry form the background of "High, Wide and Handsome," opening at the Ritz theater Tuesday with Irene Dunne and Randolph Scott in the leading roles. The plot revolves around the adventures of a carnival songstress and a determined Pennsylvania farmer in 1859 during the first oil boom Others in the cast include Akim Tamiroff, Raymond Walburn and Elizabeth Patterson. Mary Boland and Ernest Truex in "Mama Runs Wild," completes the twin bill. The story depicts the fight of a family woman who suddenly decides to run for mayor in a small town.

My Neighbor Says:

When milk has turned sour allow it to stand until it wheys, then turn into a cheesecloth bag and hang up to drain until dry. You will then have cottage cheese.

Borax whitens napkins. Use a tablespoon of borax in each two quarts of water used for rinsing the napkins.

Do not add salt to potatoes until they are almost boiled if you wish them to be white and fluffy.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

THWART THE BREAKS

"If the trumps had not been divided evenly, I could still have made my contract if the spades had broken," wailed a declarer who was set. Wouldn't it have been still better if he had worked out a plan which would have succeeded even if both suits were divided unfavorably? Sometimes that can be accomplished by ruffing one round of the side suit or giving up an early trick in it.

Five diamonds constituted the final contract at both tables in a team-of-four match on this deal. The club Q was the opening lead at both tables. At table one, the declarer, after losing the first trick, won the return of the diamond 3 with the K, ruffed a club with the diamond 8, and led the J, which he covered with the A, when East showed out. He now tried out spades and when they also failed to break, he was set one trick.

William Tilt of New York, former national amateur pocket billiard champion, sitting south at the other table, was more successful. Realizing that the distribution was very uneven all around, after winning the second trick, he ruffed a club and immediately tried out spades, cashing the A and K and ruffing one round. It did not matter whether West won with the Q or allowed the diamond J to win. In either event only a club and a diamond were lost.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Feb. 8.

This should be a very lively day, with much stirring in business and private affairs, judging by the interesting chain of planetary aspects. There may be good news of a rather surprising nature, probably in connection with legal matters, writings, contracts, publicity. Be wise in dealings with superiors: shun disputes and wordy arguments. In social, domestic and affectional relations there may be much activity.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very lively and interesting year, with much business opportunity and very happy and lively social, domestic and affectional relations. Secrecy and intrigue, or under-cover business agreements may prove advantageous. There are auspicious signs for litigation, publishing or writings, but be sure not to work at cross purposes with superiors.

A child born on this day may be very clever, lively, versatile and lovable, and may succeed either in an intellectual or artistic profession. It may also bring unusual shrewdness, tact or diplomacy to its relations.

Expert Gives Holiday Suggestions

By PAULINE SCHOFIELD
Home Service Department of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company.

What a month of mingled emotions is February! First our pulse quickens as we recall the sterling rugged qualities of good old Honest Abe. But almost immediately the tempo changes to three-quarter time and it's hearts and flowers instead.

But whether it's love or patriotism that's in the ascendance, the homemaker's horoscope always reads "Food—and plenty of it!" And so of course you'll want to take full advantage of the triple opportunity which this month brings you for serving timely food.

Valentine Luncheon.

St Valentine's Saladessert
Valentine Cakelets

Jellied Tomato Boullion

- 1 quart tomatoes
- 1 tablespoon chopped onion
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 4 whole cloves
- 1 bay leaf
- ½ cup celery
- Pepper
- 2 tablespoons gelatin
- ½ cup cold water

1. Cook tomatoes and seasoning together 20 minutes. Strain. 2. Soak gelatin in cold water and dissolve in hot tomato mixture. Cool. 3. Pour into shallow pan and place in cabinet or chiller tray to congeal 4. Serve in chilled boullion cups, cubed or broken lightly with fork. Garnish with sprig of parsley.

Chicken Shortcake.

Make a white sauce by melting ¼ cup butter, adding ¼ cup flour and stirring in 2 cups rich milk. Season with salt, pepper, paprika, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and a pimiento cut fine. Add 2 cups cold diced chicken and let heat. Serve between large baking powder biscuits split and buttered. Garnish. Serves 6.

Saladessert.

- 2 packages cherry-flavored gelatine
- 1 pint boiling water
- 1 pint cold water
- 1 packette (¼ lb) marshmallows
- 1 cup pineapple, cut in wedge
- 1 cup white cherries, halved

Dissolve cherry gelatine in the boiling water. Stir until dissolved. Then add cold water. Pour into heart-shaped mold (springform or otherwise) Place in refrigerator until almost congealed Cut the marshmallows into quarters, reserving four or five whole ones for garnishing later (Add cut marshmallows, pineapple wedges and white cherries to the thickened gelatine Return to the refrigerator until firm

Just before serving, unmold the gelatine on a large plate Garnish with marshmallows cut in half horizontally and then snip to resemble petals of flowers. Place half a maraschino cherry in center of each flower. Garnish with curly endive and serve with salad dressing or whipped cream

Valentine Cakelets.

- ¾ cup shortening
- 2 cup powdered sugar
- 2¾ cup sifted cake flour
- 3 tsp baking powder
- ½ tsp. salt
- 1 tsp vanilla extract
- 1 cup bottled milk or ½ cup evaporated milk and ½ cup water
- 6 egg whites

Cream shorteninng and add sugar gradually while creaming Sift dry ingredients together. Mix flavoring with milk, and add to the sugar and shortening mixture alternately with the dry ingredients Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into batter Pour some of batter into a well-greased heart-shaped baking pan size 5"x5½x5½" pour rest of batter into 24 greased shallow fluted cakelet pans 3-½" across top and 1-½" across base Bake heart-shaped cake in a moderately hot oven of 375 degrees F for 40 minutes and individual cakes at the same temperature for 25 minutes.

When cakes are cool, make white icing and reserve a little for decorating purposes Tint the rest of the icing a delicate pink and use to frost the heart shaped cake Outline the heart with the reserved white icing using a cake decorator Decorate center of cake with a flower made with citron for leaves and a few blanched filberts Turn the small cakes bottom side up and frost with pink icing, top each with a filbert nutmeat

Another Canape

Spread thinly rolled cheese pie crust with pickle and olive relish. Cut into one-and-one-half-inch squares and quickly turn each square half over Prick the tops with a fork and press the sides together Bake for six minutes and serve warm

Stepped-Up Flavors

One-fourth cup cooked crisp bacon added to corn sticks or bread batter when baked, gives a delicious flavor which goes well with a breakfast or luncheon main dish.

Lamb For Valentine Day

Rib lamb chops most accommodatingly form hearts in the arrangement of this attractive platter for a Valentine luncheon. Cauliflower flowerets give the idea of a lacy background and hearts cut with a cookie cutter from spiced beets add color and form in the holiday tradition.

February Gives Opportunity For Variety of Gay Parties

February, the shortest month in the year, gives us the most holidays—all good excuses for being frivolous and giving a party. Perhaps your choice will be a pioneer dinner honoring the birthday of Lincoln or a colonial one, with cherries and hatchets, on Washington's natal day. Or perhaps a Valentine luncheon gay with hearts and darts will be your way of falling into the mood.

Inez S Willson, home economist, suggests the following menu for a highly successful Valentine luncheon

Valentine Luncheon.

Minced Ham Appetizers
Stuffed Olives
Celery Curls dipped in Paprika
Tomato and Pimiento Soup
Broiled Lamb Chops
Shoestring Potatoes
Spiced Beets
Hot Biscuit Currant Jelly
Ice Cream in Heart Molds
Heart Shaped Cakes Coffee

Color Scheme.

It is easy to carry out a red color scheme for St Valentine's Day as is shown in the luncheon menu. The minced ham appetizers are heart-shaped pieces of bread spread with minced ham.

Celery curls dipped in paprika add another note of red So does the tomato and pimiento soup, which is simply creamed tomato soup garnished with a few slivers of pimiento

The lamb chop platter is garnished with spiced beets cut with a heart-shaped cookie cutter Currant jelly adds its quota of Valentine gaiety.

The heart-shaped ice cream molds may be accompanied by little cakes iced with pink and decorated with flowers—if one is adept with the pastry tube.

Lamb chops were selected as the meat dish for this Valentine luncheon because everyone likes them, they are so easy to prepare, and right now there is an abundance of high quality lamb available.

Broiled Lamb Chops.

Select two frenched rib lamb chops for each person to be served. Preheat the broiled until it is very hot Place chops on rack and insert broiler pan in position so that top of chops are about three inches from the heat. If it is not possible to have this much distance turn down the gas. When the top side of chops are nicely browned—about eight minutes—season and turn and continue to broil until the second side is brown.

Arrange on the platter so that each two chops make a heart shape as is shown in the accompanying picture. Decorate the platter with the spiced beets which have been cut in hearts with a cookie cutter. Cauliflower flowerets form a lacy background.

Spitler Heads Climalene District

Appointment of K. A. Spitler as its 1938 sales representative in dealings with retail grocery stores of the Mansfield market was announced by the Climalene company at its recent annual sales conference.

Under the plan, Spitler will make Mansfield a headquarters city, thus making possible a closer working contact with local merchants on 1938 sales promotion plans . This program, mapped out in detail at the annual sales meeting, includes another extensive advertising campaign to run throughout the year in The News-Journal.

Pickle Canape

Dip thin slices of sweet pickles in mayonnaise. Then place the pickles on crackers or toast spread with fish paste.

Floods In Michigan Drive 500 Families From Homes

ICE BLOCKS UP RIVERS FED BY HEAVY RAINS

Dam Collapses Under Terrific Strain; Deputies Planning to Evacuate Hundreds More.

(By United Press)

DETROIT—More than 500 families were driven from their homes today as week-end floods broke ice jams in rivers throughout southern Michigan and sent torrents raging over lowlands.

A temperature jump to 58 degrees Sunday night brought thunderstorms, rain and hail on the heels of two near-record cold waves.

Washed-out bridges, flooded lowlands and homeless families were reported from Holland on the west, north to the thumb district and south of Detroit.

Hundreds Threatened

A huge ice jam blocked the mouth of the Clinton river near Mt. Clemens. Sheriff's deputies fought to evacuate still more families after a night in which hundreds were threatened.

"We're trying to dynamite the ice," said a deputy, "but haven't been able so far. The water is still rising.

He said the only serious damage so far was confined to livestock. Boats were being used to take refugees from their homes. More than 75 families already have been evacuated.

Virtually all western Michigan streams were over their banks. Rising waters forced a score or more families to flee their homes along the Grand river near Comstock Park north of Grand Rapids, according to Sheriff Hugh Blacklock. The sheriff said he had warned as many more to seek safety on higher ground.

Ice Breaks Dam.

A dam on the Rouge river at Childsdale south of Rockford collapsed last night under the crumbling force of an ice jam. Sheriff's deputies prepared to dynamite the jam. Flood waters of the Rouge and Grand rivers were reported rising still higher. Several bridges crossing both streams were closed by state police Sunday afternoon.

The Pine river was reported on a rampage at Alma, inundating lowlands and threatening bridges.

Several families were evacuated from lowlands bordering Kearsley creek in Flint.

Opinions Clash As Hollywood Picks Its 'Best' Players

HOLLYWOOD —(AP)— Artistic opinions clashed today as 15,000 film actors and technicians weighed nominees for "best" achievements in 1937.

Results of an industry-wide poll will be announced at the annual banquet of the academy of motion picture arts and sciences March 3, when gold statuettes will be awarded the winners.

Five actors and five actresses were nominated as having given the best performances during 1937. Two, Paul Muni and Luise Rainer, won awards in 1936.

Muni was nominated to repeat on the basis of his "The Life of Emile Zola." Miss Rainer was chosen for her Chinese peasant characterization in "The Good Earth."

Other actors nominated:

Charles Boyer in "Conquest;" Frederic March in "A Star Is Born;" Robert Montgomery in "Night Must Fall;" and Spencer Tracy in "Captains Courageous."

Besides Miss Rainer, the actress nominees were:

Irene Dunne in "The Awful Truth;" Greta Garbo in "Camille;" Janet Gaynor in "A Star Is Born;" and Barbara Stanwick in "Stella Dallas."

HOLD ELECTION

SHELBY—Election of officers will be held tonight at the regular session of the directors of the Shelby Business club, Chester Monn, president, said today.

Up and Down THE STREET

When funeral services were held this afternoon in Bellville for the late Cyrus M. "Cy" Gatton, Mansfield Boy Scouts took part in the services. During the services, 15 scouts acted as a guard of honor. For two hours Saturday, and Sunday afternoon, four scouts stood guard as the body lie in state at Bellville. Mr. Gatton was a steadfast friend of scouting, first becoming active in the movement 17 years ago.

A belated picture postcard from Carl H. Stander, Mansfield contractor, who has been vacationing with his family in the West Indies, got a laugh from Richland county commissioners today. Arriving four days after the Standers returned home, the card shows two native boys riding donkeys and bears Stander's remark: "A Democratic parade, or something." The card was mailed from Curacao, Dutch West Indies, where the standers visited on the Caribbean cruise.

Mansfielders in Sarasota, Fla., are pointing with pride to the accomplishment of one of their number. Mrs. Charles Avery, 109 South Franklin street, won the finals in the shuffle tournament which was open to anyone in the winter city. The sport is now one of the most popular of all outdoor sports and is played throughout the state. Mrs. Avery, with her husband and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Avery, were among the "early birds" to leave Mansfield last fall for the South.

* * *

There will be no doubt about the score at future basketball games at Mansfield high school. A new electric scoreboard presented by the January graduating class has been installed in the gym. It will eliminate criticism of the spectators on the east end of the gym who were unable to follow the score on the old board. The new electric device shows the exact playing time as well as the score, but adds to the duties of the official timekeeper.

Study Clues In Crusading Rector's Slaying

POLICE CHECK FOOTPRINTS, 2 PISTOL BULLETS

Sniper Who Shot Pastor as He Wrote Sermon Trailed Through Underbrush.

(By Associated Press)

ST. SIMONS ISLAND, Ga. — Rain-washed footprints and two .38 caliber bullets gave slender clues today to the nocturnal slayer of Dr. Charles H. Lee, vice-fighting rector of historic Christ church. He was a second cousin of the Confederate general, Robert E. Lee.

A midnight sniper shot the 72-year-old rector Saturday night as he worked over a sermon in his home on this vacationist haunt off the coast of Georgia.

The footprints trailed an eighth of a mile through moss-hung, tangled woodland toward the island recreation pier, then faded out.

Coroner J. O. Baldwin, recessing the inquest until Tuesday, said the prints were made by sharptoed "dude variety" shoes of size nine or 10.

Barely Missed Head.

One of the two bullets, an ordinary lead slug, was found embedded in a wall with its line of flight indicating it had passed within inches of the rector's head. The other, a copper-jacketed missile, had crashed trough his brain and ranged past the walls of two rooms.

A friend of the rector, G. C. Durand, headmaster of Sea island school, said Dr. Lee had been disturbed over what he described as vice conditions in the region. He said Mrs. Lee quoted her husband as saying "some great tragedy will have to occur before Glynn county will have law and order."

Mrs. Lee said the two heard one report and thought it an automobile blowout or backfire. Then leaving the room, she heard another and returned.

"I found Dr. Lee sitting on the settee just as I left him," she said, "his head leaning forward . . . I saw his face covered with blood."

His hand clutched penciled sermon notes.

Christ church was founded at Port Frederica after colonizing. Gen. James Edward Oglethorpe established the post as a buffer state between England's Carolina and Spanish Florida. John Wesley, who later founded Methodism, and his brother Charles were the first rectors.

The "Little Man" Speaks.

JUST WHO among the Roosevelt advisers conceived the idea of following his various conferences with the big business leaders by bringing to Washington some 800 and more of "little business men," to advise with the president on the state of the nation, is not known.

IT MAY HAVE been Secretary Roper or it may have been some member of the White House "inner circle," which by the way, does not include Mr. Roper. Or it easily may have been the president's own idea. He has that kind. But whoever had it performed a public service, though certainly not quite the sort intended. One of the favorite Rooseveltian conceptions, enunciated by himself over the radio and at many a press conference; echoed and elaborated upon by his subordinates of the Ickes-Jackson type; proclaimed by New Deal senators and harped upon by the administration publicity agents, is that there is in the country a handful of sinister big business men who, inherently vicious and greedy for gain, are against the Roosevelt policies. On the other hand, the "small business man" is sound and fine. He has greatly profited, it is held, through administration policies; is strongly for them and very grateful to the president.

THAT HAS been the claim. That has been the doctrine laid down in the White House and taken up by the spokesmen. To such an extent has it been reiterated that a great many people who ought to have known better were impressed. There seemed no way to refute the idea or disprove the claim. At least, there was none until they brought the "little business man" down here and gave him a chance to express himself. It then was revealed that the "little business man," in neither his ideas nor his emotions, differed in any way from the big business men. He was, it is true, a good deal hotter under the collar and a lot more violent in expressing his views, but he was distinctly for the same things and against the same things.

THERE IS no doubt that this was something of a surprise to the White House advisers and the White House incumbent, which none of the face-saving gestures so hurriedly made was quite sufficient to disguise. They had repeated so often and so emphatically that Mr. Roosevelt was the friend of the "little fellow" and that the "little fellows" were all with him that they had gotten to believe it themselves. In consequence, when the "little fellows" made it clear that they are not only intensely disturbed but extremely indignant over the administration's treatment of business in the past; its present threatening attitude and its suggestions for further legislation, it left the sponsors of the "little business men's" visit slightly off balance.

IT IS TRUE the "resolutions" were greatly toned down before they were taken to the president and that there was no belligerency about their presentation by the selected committee of ten. This, however, did not alter the fact that the "little business man" wanted Mr. Roosevelt to stop doing a number of things he has been doing and to do a number of things he has not been doing.

WHEN THEY ARE fairly considered, these resolutions constitute the most striking plea for a return to sanity that has yet been made and it ought to have an effect. It came from a group of men the majority of whom unquestionably voted for Mr. Roosevelt in 1936 and are not very hostile now, though they are greatly dismayed at the result of his policies and the character of his program.

IT REALLY WAS impressive and significant—this expression from the "little fellow," despite the turbulence and incoherence of the gathering. It was an indictment that could not be laughed off or discounted by the usual reference to economic royalists or princes of privilege. And it ought to have some effect upon congress.

Hollywood Speaks—

Judy Garland

Fanny Brice

HOLLYWOOD—Today's pictorial drama is entitled "It's a Nice Lunch If You Can Eat It," or "The Conquest of Spaghetti in Three Easy Lessons."

Spaghetti plays an important role in the film ditty "Everybody Sing," but it also has its place as a social problem in everyday life.

To aid others in future crises of the sort, our helpful candid cameraman visited the set to observe the spaghetti-conquering techniques of Judy Garland, Fanny Brice and others.

Miss Garland, it would appear, is about to smother a hot note with a semi-swirled forkful of the dripping Italian serpentine. Her innate caution is revealed by her worried watchfulness in piloting the cargo to its destination.

Miss Brice exemplifies the "hanging garden of Babylon" system, designed to let the slips fall where they may without danger to one's vest or apron.

The aim of every spaghetti-eater should be the practiced nonchalance displayed by Mickey Rooney, who found his lunch on location for another picture. Mr. Rooney is so adept at lunching that he wastes not a glance on his tray but dispatches everything in easy waltz time. But hold! Mr. Rooney, it must be observed, is not confronted with spaghetti.

Cunningham Hopes To Set World's Records At Every Standard Distance From Half to Ten Miles.

GLENN CUNNINGHAM, beyond question the greatest foot racer—yard for yard—in the world today at any distance, is going after a 4:05 mile, and the world's record with more than a second to spare, 12 nights hence at the annual games of the New York C. C. If he misses there—and he might—he'll make the effort in a spcial race with Archie San Romani and others on Dartmouth's indoor track at Hanover, N. H., in March.

But that's only part of it. The rest is that, before this year is finished, Cunningham hopes, and privately expects, to establish a world's record at every standard distance from a half mile all the way up to ten. This probably will be his valedictory to track and field athletics.

THE program in question was outlined to the writer after Cunningham had made a holy show of his field to win the Wanamaker mile at the Millrose games Saturday night in 4:11, coasting. There was practically no oposition, San Romani being beaten off by 12 years with Cunningham's final charge, with Fenske, of Wisconsin, closing strongly to take third place from the inevitable Gene Venzke.

Glenn ran the final quarter in 59 seconds, and in this writer's considered opinion, is a far greater runner now at the age of 29 than he was in his so-called prime. I'm certain that neither of the Englishmen, Lovelock and Wooderson, could beat him as he is today. When he puts on the pressure now, he lengthens out like a quarter miler.

As a matter of fact, he ran a 50 2-10 quarter late Saturday night as a member of the New York Curb Exchange relay team, an amazing effort considering the fact that, in trying to break through a big field, he was stopped in mid-stride three times. Trained for the distance, they claim he could shade 49 seconds any time.

They also claim that the half mile is really his best distance, for there his speed, strength and generalship make for an ideal combination. Cunningham himself estimates that he can run a world's record half in 1.47, with a 54-second first quarter and a long "charge" through the last 300 yards to a 53-second final quarter. Nobody in the world has ever come back with a final 440 like that, but if Cunningham thinks he can do it, he's probably not mistaken.

He also thinks he can run two miles in 8:50 for a world's record at this distance This is 8 seconds under Don Lash's indoor and outdoor records at the distance, but it's Cunningham's idea that he can run a faster first mile than Lash and still have as much left as that eccentric gentleman for the final half of the distance.

LASH, still doubling up with his races, tried the Wanamaker mile on Saturday but evidently had his mind on the two mile race later in the evening. Anyhow, he made certain that there would be no record at the mile by taking the field through a slow 63-second first quarter and then dropping out shortly thereafter. Two weeks hence, though, he can make himself extremely useful if he'll really go out and run to win in the Baxter mile at the New York A. C. meet.

If Don does that, Cunningham will certainly crack 4·06 for a world's record, And even if Don doesn't, Cunningham may crack it anyhow. Briefly. The man's made a believer out of me.

ONTARIO CAN BRING TITLE RACE TO CLOSE THIS WEEK

Needs Wins Over Bellville and Union to Retain County Crown.

THIS week will virtually mark the close of play in the Richland county league.

A number of games remain on the schedule next week, but the front-running Onatrio Warriors can bring the championship race to a close this week-end.

The defending champions meet Bellville and Union, and as neither club is expected to threaten Ontario's win chances, the Warriors will in all likelihood be ready for a mammoth celebration after their game, Saturday night.

It is still possible for Butler to tie Ontario for the title, but its hopes rest on the slim possibility of either Union or Bellville trimming Coach Orv Kibler's club.

Ontario goes to Bellville Friday night, and completes its season with Union on the home floor Saturday.

The other games Friday take Lucas to Madison, which was kept idle last week by a smallpox scare, and Lexington to Butler.

This may be one of the reasons why major league pitchers are anxious for the season to begin. The driver of the team is Whitlow Wyatt, pitcher of Cleveland Indians, on his farm near Buchanan, Ga.

RANDOM SHOTS

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

IT APPEARS that the size of the professional athlete's pay envelope does not depend on how well he performs, but in what country he is exhibiting his talents.

Compare the incomes of England's athletes with those of the American pros, and you can readily understand why John Bull's men of sport are envious.

Cricket is to England what baseball is to America. It is the national summer pastime. But baseball players draw down anywhere from $45,000 to $6,000 for big league freshmen, while leading cricketeers receive $55 for a match on their home grounds, and $75 for an appearance on the road. They play no more than 30 matches a season.

American fight purses are huge compared to England's. No English fighter would dream of averaging $25,150 per scrap for 39 professional battles in his own country as did Joe Louis. Few fighters receive more than $25 per fight in England.

Soccer is another popular sport in Great Britain, but the players receive about $40 a week during the season, and $30 during the off-season. Sammy Baugh drew down something like $15,000 for 12 games with the Washington Redskins.

It is claimed that 80 per cent of England's professional golfers do not average $25 a week. Golfers in this country receive retainer's fees from sporting goods companies, salaries from clubs and cracks at numerous tournament prizes.

One of the exceptions in the English golfing ranks is Henry Cotton. Golf has made him wealthy. He charges players $10 to play a round with him, and receives $5 for a 30-minute lesson, which other pros get from 84 cents to $1.25 for instructions.

Tennis pros in England are not paid anywhere near the sum commanded by American pro racquet wielders. Fred Perry is an Englishman who earned big dough in the net sport, but he made it all here.

MOTORCYCLE and auto racing competitors receive, minor purses, probably 20 per cent of what similar services pay in the United States.

One of the few sports which pay as well in England as it does in this country is horse racing.

British athletes can be pardoned for feeling a bit envious, don't you think?

Tygers to Engage Willard, Columbus East This Week

Meet Railroaders at Home Lair Tuesday Night; Other Game Saturday.

ONLY three more games remain on the regular Mansfield high school basketball schedule, and two of these will be played this week.

The Tygers, who have won eight out of 14 games, open their week's schedule Tuesday night when they entertain Willard, which the home town boys beat two weeks ago to snap a three-game losing streak.

Idle Friday Night.

Mansfield is idle Friday night, but return to action Saturday when Columbus East sends its cage forces to the Tyger lair.

The Tygers will complete their season a week from Friday unless additional games are scheduled in the meantime. Lagrange, Ind., will provide the opposition for the Mansfielders in their final scheduled game.

Mansfield will rest the week after the Lagrange game, and will not make another appearance until the district tournament in Sandusky where it is paired with Tiffin Columbian.

The home basketeers encountered a lot of trouble in defeating Willard on its home court, but might find the Railroaders easier at the Tyger lair. Columbus East is expected to be a tougher foe for the Tygers.

Scott Due To Return.

Tommy Scott, who did not appear in the Akron West game because of a sprained ankle, will probably be ready to return to action Tuesday, Harry Mehock, who is handling the team in the absence of Coach Russ Murphy, recently called to Denver, Colo., by the serious illness of a sister.

Mehock stressed improved marksmanship in under-basket shots in a light drill staged today.

Engage Second Division Foes

Class B Leaders Scheduled In Last Two Games.

Teams tied for the lead in the Class B church league will meet second division foes at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night.

First Lutheran and Park Avenue Baptist, which share the lead, meet Central M. E. and First M. E., respectively, in the last two games on Tuesday's program.

First Presbyterian faces B'Nai Jacob, St. John's tackles South Main and First Christian meets Mayflower in the other tilts, the first game starting at 7 p. m.

Top Wrestling Card At Armory Tonight

Highly-Rated Talaber, Davis Collide In Feature of "Ladies' Night" Program.

FRANKIE TALABER, highly-rated young Chicago light-heavyweight, will match grips with Sterling Davis of Texas tonight in the Armory, headlining a well-balanced card by the Quality Club.

It will be "ladies night" for the second successive week and the fair sex will be admitted free if accompanied by an escort.

Called by mat critics "the greatest youngster in many years and a virtual certainty to win the light-heavyweight title before many more have passed," Talaber will be risking an undefeated record against the Texas bad man.

But Davis' rugged style of wrestling, learned in the Texas long-horn country, has produced amazing results.

The semi-final to tonight's card brings to Mansfield one of the outstanding colored heavyweights, "Gentleman Jack" Claybourn of Portland, Ore. Jack will meet Alonzo Wood, the rough-tough ex-UCLA football player.

Opening the program will be a match between Joe Wolfe of Columbus and Ira Shota of Pittsburgh.

City Loop Tilts Moved Back to Wednesday.

The City Class A basketball league weekly program, usually played on Monday night at the Senior high, will be moved back to Wednesday night for the next two weeks, President Chester Swank announced today. This week's card tosses the league leading Yuncker Sports against the Ira D. Ling Canzols and the Elks against Mack Pure Ooils.

With Bayer collecting 20 points to lead the way, the Supply team encountered little trouble in tallying its victory. The winners led, 34 to 22, at halftime. A second-half rally, led by Wert who scored 16 points, enabled the Opticals to come from behind to annex the second affair

Brig Young Leads Scoring In Moose League Matches With 707 Total.

The Moose No. 1 team swept its lodge traveling league series at Akron over the week-end, while the No. 2 dropped two games of a match with Mt. Vernon at the Meder alleys. The No. 1 team rolled a 2720 to take three from Akron.

The No. 2 bowlers rolled a large enough score to win three games, but a 45-pin per game handicap proved too much for the home lodgemen.

Led by Brig Young, who cracked out a 707, the No. 2 team rolled a 3099, finishing with a 1133 game. Young put together games of 227, 247 and 233. Hilborn shot a 629 and Dale Cleckner a 609. Zarlengo, 664, led Mt. Vernon to a 2986 total.

MILD SUPPORT REDUCES EARLY MARKET LOSSES

Leaders Dip Fractions to Two Points In First Hour; Volume Limited.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Stocks were accorded mild support in today's market after leaders had dipped fractions to 2 points in early dealings.

While extreme declines were reduced in many cases near the second hour, volume was exceptionally small.

Rails, utilities, coppers and rubbers were only slightly in arears.

Talk was heard in some trading quarters that a speculative contingent recently had been selling American stocks short in London in the morning and covering at New York in the closing hour. Bonds and commodities were uneven.

In their search for trend clues, market observers studied the survey of the magazine "Steel" which found no definite improvement in this industry as important consumers continued to hold purchasing orders to immediate needs.

The review said, however, the promise of increased demand for shipbuilding in the next few weeks tended to brighten the picture.

Analysts derived some comfort from the treasury announcement that $133,000,000 of "baby bonds" had been sold in January, the highest total for any month since these securities were placed on sale through the postal service in March, 1935.

HORSE BREEDERS PICK DIRECTORS

County Association Hears Talk By State Expert; Elects Officers Tonight.

Meeting at the courthouse Saturday afternoon, 20 members of the Richland County Horse Breeders association re-elected three directors and named one new member to the board.

Re-elected were William Pfeifer, Washington township; C. R. Sipe, Jackson township; and B. B. Pettit, Springfield township. G. B. Ray, Washington township, who resigned, was replaced by Byron Clark, Franklin township.

Hold-over members of the board are H. K. Lehnhart, Washington township, chairman; C. C. Hammett, Jackson township; G. H. Culler, Monroe township, and Charles W. McBride, Mifflin township.

The board will meet at the county agent's office in the courthouse at 8 p. m. today to elect officers for the year.

The principal speaker at Saturday's meeting was L. P. McCann, of the department of Animal Husbandry, Ohio State university, who predicted that the next two years would be profitable for horse breeders.

The price of horses is better than in recent years, he said, and the horse population has not yet reached the point where a reduction in price is likely.

APPOINTS NEW SEWAGE HEAD

Hunter Picks J. C. Turner as Engineer After Sotherland Submits Resignation.

operation of water filtration plants.

Former Ohio Brass Engineer.

Although inexperienced in sewage plant operation, Turner told Mayor Hunter he "felt confident he could operate the plant accurately and economically."

From 1920 to 1932, Turner was employed by the Ohio Brass company as a chemical engineer in the technical department. Since 1932, he has been employed at Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, as a supervisor in the enameling department and for the past two years as an inspector.

After announcing the appointment of Turner to the post, Mayor Hunter said he would ask council to re-employ J. G. Collier, Elyria, as technical supervisor of the plant, to assist Turner Collier is superintendent of the Elyria sewage disposal plant, and for six months, from March through September last year, was employed as technical supervisor to assist Sotherland.

Collier was paid $150 a month for the first two months and $125 monthly for the next four According to Sotherland, Collier came to Mansfield twice a month from April to September. He said these visits occurred every other week-end from Saturday noon to Sunday noon and were devoted principally to laboratory technique the first three months.

Meanwhile, word from the state health department today said that F. H. Waring, chief engineer, had stated that the appointment of Turner would be satisfactory, provided a qualified engineer is hired for at least a year in an advisory capacity, after which Turner would be required to pass an examination for the post.

Waring was quoted as saying he understood Collier would be named technical supervisor, and that Collier would be responsible to the state health department.

It was this phase of the situation that seemed likely to find some opposition in council. At least one member, Fred Miller, Fifth ward, Democrat, said he was opposed to the employment of another inexperienced operator and the renewed employment of a technical supervisor.

Commenting on the personnel changes today Hunter said: "I regret very much that it was necessary for me to accept Mr. Sotherland's resignation as superintendent of the sewage treatment plant

"During the short time as mayor I have found Mr Sotherland always courteous and considerate of my requests. I therefore wish for him the best of success whatever work he may undertake."

The mayor said he had no alternative other than ask for Sotherland's resignation in view of recent reports from the state board of health and engineers who supervised operation of the sewage disposal plant.

A special meeting of city council will be called, probably next week, Hunter said, at which two pieces of legislation dealing with the plant will be submitted.

One will be a measure calling for the re-hiring of Collier as technical supervisor at $125 a month, Hunter said, and the other, an ordinance creating the positions and fixing the salaries of the various sewage plant employes, which calls for a wage of $2,500 for the superintendent of the plant

On this basis the combined total of the wages to be paid for operation and supervision of the plant for this year will total $4,000.

However, the mayor said he had the approval of the state board of health on the appointment of Turner and that Waring had agreed to "help him sell the present set-up to council."

The ordinance which calls for the employment of sewage plant personnel, and sets salaries expires March 8. The ordinance says that the plant engineer must be a resident of the city of Mansfield.

Hunter said there is no Class A sewage plant engineer residing in the city.

The state health board's recommendations last week said that it had agreed when the plant personnel was set up, to the employment of an inexperienced engineer, with technical supervision, but held that plan to be the least desirable. Pointing out that the city had retained a technical supervisor only six months, and then had left the plant in the hands of an engineer without the experience it claimed was necessary, it urged appointment of an experienced man.

Favors Recommendations.

Miller said he was in favor of following the health board's recommendation, even if it meant making a change in the wording of the ordinance enabling personnel appointment.

Sotherland's letter of recommendation also urged that Hunter find an experienced engineer.

Other members of council hesitated to voice opinions on the situation until they had studied it more closely George C. Kyle, Third ward, said he was in favor of maintaining efficiency at the plant, and indicated he favored employment of an experienced engineer if one could be obtained. C. N. Shultz, Second ward, and George Berg, councilman-at-large, said they intended to give "careful consideration" to the legislation setting salaries at the sewage plant, and to Hunter's announced proposal to ask for retention of a technical supervisor, but would not commit themselves further.

Councilman Russell D Porch, First ward, while not opposed to the hiring of local personnel, said it was of prime importance to consider the $331,000 investment.

"While I much prefer employing Mansfield men for all city positions I think that we should first consider the protection of our plant, even if we have to go outside of Mansfield to get the right man," he said

Lester D Hunter, chairman of the sewer committee, said he felt that "if a change had to be made, the treatment plant should be placed in the hands of a thoroughly experienced sewage plant engineer."

"We have spent a great deal of time and money on the plant and that alone should warrant some consideration," he added.

Councilmen Harry Emmons, Arthur Croak and James Crum could not be reached. Crum was out of the city.

The week-end's developments are the culmination of charges that the sewage plant equipment was not functioning as it should, and of the recommendations of the state health board, following an inspection of the plant made two weeks ago by Bruce McDill, state engineer.

The state report reached Mansfield last Thursday On the following day, Sowers wrote to the mayor, recommending that an experienced operator be employed "at once."

Armed with these recommendations, and a similar one from Collier, Hunter called in Sotherland, whom he had re-appointed only last month, and asked for his resignation.

Sotherland complied, stating to Hunter in his resignation, "It seems best, in view of the conditions that exist, to secure an experienced and competent operating engineer for your treatment plant.

"During the period of our contact, you have been extremely fair in all our dealings and I wish your administration of civic affairs the best success."

Later, Sotherland said he still insisted that the trouble with the plant was mechanical.

"There are 11 piece of equipment that are faulty and in need of further study before final approval," Sotherland said, listing as falling under that category, the six aerator units consisting of paddles and drive motors, three pumps and two comminutors."

Representatives of the installing companies have been in Mansfield at intervals to check the operation of the equipment, and Hunter has announced that the final payment on the plant, which amounts to $6,089 and was due yesterday, would not be made until the city is satisfied that it is satisfactory.

Blames Motors.

Sotherland has claimed that the aerator motors were not powerful enough to turn the paddles properly when the full amount of air is turned into the tanks. Originally equipped with 10-inch blades, the paddles were equipped with six-inch ones. Sotherland has claimed the motors were still overloaded. The change to six-inch paddles was made by the company which installed the equipment, the Doerr company of Toledo, with the approval of Sowers.

Sotherland has also claimed that the comminutors, which break up solid sewage, and the nonclogging pumps, have failed to operate properly Representatives of the Chicago Pump company, which installed this equipment, have also been in Mansfield at intervals.

January Steel Operations at Lowest Level Since '34.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— January proved to be a dark month for the steel industry, the magazine Steel said today.

Steel's survey disclosed that pig iron output fell off to the lowest level since December, 1934, while active stacks at the end of the month numbered 91, the lowest since June, 1935. In January 1937 a total of 169 stacks were producing.

Buying by automobile interests continued light last week as manufacturers shortened production of cars and steel discounted expectation of large buying by railroads in event a rate advance is allowed.

The review said that some track and rolling stock requirements are so pressing that they are likely to be the source of some tonnage immediately on announcement of the decision on rates.

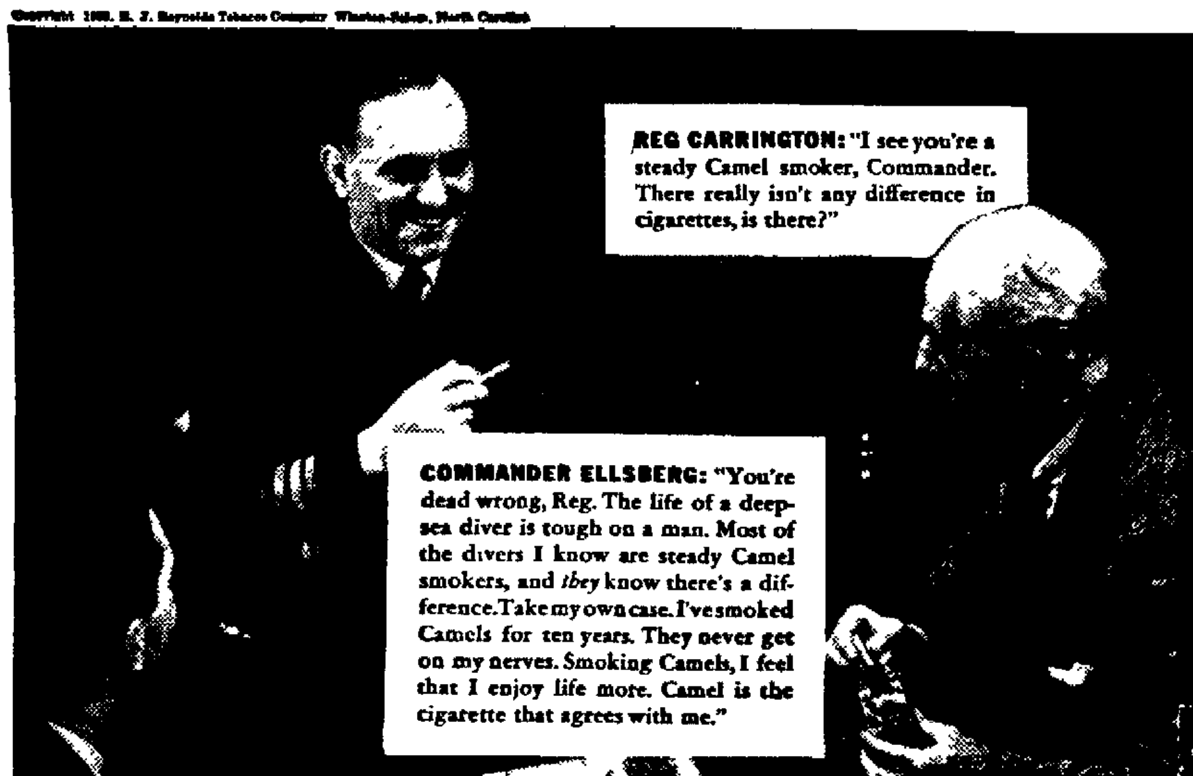
REG CARRINGTON ASKS COMMANDER ELLSBERG:

"Can you tell a Real Difference between Camels and other cigarettes?"

Copyright 1938, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company Winston-Salem, North Carolina



REG CARRINGTON: "I see you're a steady Camel smoker, Commander. There really isn't any difference in cigarettes, is there?"

COMMANDER ELLSBERG: "You're dead wrong, Reg. The life of a deep-sea diver is tough on a man. Most of the divers I know are steady Camel smokers, and they know there's a difference. Take my own case. I've smoked Camels for ten years. They never get on my nerves. Smoking Camels, I feel that I enjoy life more. Camel is the cigarette that agrees with me."

CLUB-ROOM CONVERSATION (above) so often swings around to cigarettes. Commander Ellsberg says: "That famous saying, 'I'd walk a mile for a Camel!' expresses how enthusiastic I am about Camels myself."

"Yes—absolutely!" says Commander Edward Ellsberg. And millions of other steady smokers agree that there is a distinct difference in Camels. That's why Camels are the largest-selling cigarette in the world.

A MAN OF ACTION! (right) Commander Ellsberg shares under-sea danger with his men. He says: "The last thing a diver does before going down—and the first thing he does after coming up—is to smoke a Camel."

THE TORCH (left) invented by Ellsberg. Imagine the long, tiring hours of research he put in on this successful invention! He says: "When I feel tired—a Camel gives me a quick 'lift.'"

CHAPTER XXII

Sometime during the long night hours that followed Gerta Greenway's coming to the Rushmore, Caradad Vardell made two discoveries. It might be more nearly correct to say that she acknowledged two errors.

The first was rather terrifying. She had told herself over and over that Terry Cantine was nothing more than a friend. Now, she knew that he was more. Gerta's news had shocked her into that admission. She must have been in love with Terry from the time she was a child, in those glamorous days when he was her hero. Now, that she found him again, he had become the embodiment of her vague dreams. He was the same Terry, more appealing than ever, now that he was a man. A man, but—in a thousand familiar ways — the same heedless boy of old. To see him again, be with him, seemed so—so right.

Caradad had not attempted to define his place before, except that he was her one remaining link with the beloved past at Farrabow. She had taken for granted that was the reason seeing him again had meant so very much. Until now she had not known how much. It had been so easy to accept this recent contentment that she had not allowed herself to dwell upon the apparent closeness of the relationship that existed between Terry and Gerta Greenway.

And there was the other error Caradad admitted. Greta.

It was impossible, at the start, not to believe that Gerta was in love with Terry. Gerta had made that plain, in a way that no woman could misunderstand. But, only tonight, Gerta had denied it. She had.

Otherwise, how could she have stood there—right before that picture of Terry—and made that remark about those who dance having to pay the piper. Perhaps she believed it. But it was the way she had said it—dismissingly.

No, Gerta Greenway didn't really love Terry. If a woman loved a man, she would share his every misfortune—disgrace, even. Prison! Caradad winced. It still didn't seem possible that Terry could be in such straits, that he knowingly had done something—crooked. But Gerta had been very certain, so certain that she had assumed a slightly righteous attitude. She said she had warned him and that he laughed.

That sounded like Terry. He would laugh—always so sure of himself.

Somebody had to help him now. That's all there was to it. They had to! And in spite of anything he might do or say.

Caradad remembered miserably that she never had thought to ask Terry for his phone number. She could get it from Gerta, but she recoiled instinctively from that. She wouldn't have the slightest idea how to broach the subject again when she did see Terry, but see him she must.

Another thought came to her and she turned on the light at the head of her bed to see the time. A little after one. A moment later, she was at the desk in her living room hunting for telegraph blanks. Having found one, she nibbled thoughtfully at the end of her penholder for a time, trying to compose a night letter that would convey her desires without being too specific. An uneasiness as to what Judge Pomphrette would say when it was put into his hands somewhat jumbled her thoughts. Finally, it was done and Caradad summoned a belboy. "Please see that this is forwarded at once," she told him.

By morning, Caradad had settled it in her own mind that she would be certain to see or hear from Terry before the day was over. There was no way of knowing when he might call, so the thing to do was to remain within sound of her telephone. So she indulged in having breakfast and the newspapers brought to her room.

The morning dragged interminably, with an unwelcome tread of worry woven through its general nervous discomfort. The worry became a dread. What if it were too late? What if the net already had closed around Terry and he couldn't call—couldn't if he wanted to? The thought was enough to start Caradad on another painstaking search through the columns of the papers.

It was almost two when Caradad surrendered and went down to lunch. Even then, she took the precaution to leave word at the desk that she expected a telephone call. It arrived with the dessert.

"Sorry, Dad, I've been so neglectful," were Terry's first words. His voice sounded very tired, as he added, "I've been tied up. Mad?"

"Of course not."

"Then how about having dinner with me tonight?"

"I have an engagement. I'm entertaining a friend at dinner—a Mr. Cantine, sometime of Oklahoma. Dinner will be served at seven here at my hotel. Quite informal."

"Hey! What's the idea? What do you want to eat there for?"

"Reasons. That's the way it has to be—the way it's going to be. I will be waiting in the lobby from, say, six forty-five. And you are not to keep me waiting. Hear?"

"Well, yes, but . . ."

"No buts, if you please. This is important. I have to go now—my coffee will be getting cold. I'll look for you. Good-bye."

Well, there was something accomplished. She still had no idea how she was going to handle Terry, but she would have her chance to try.

She retained the initiative when Terry reported for dinner at the Rushmore by taking the conversation into her own hands—something that seemed to suit Terry. Caradad may have imagined it, but the shadows under his eyes seemed to have deepened and the little lines at the corners had become creases. The only time that he seemed to relax into his familiar quizzical mood was after an account of Caradad's visit to Severance's farm and the horseback ride. She gave him all the details.

"Looks as though the great Jawn were trying to cut me out," Terry observed. "Is he?"

"I wouldn't be at all surprised," Caradad admitted cheerfully. "Would you care?"

"Who am I to care?" He attempted to say it lightly, but there was a grim little undertone to the question.

"But would you?"

"Sure. But what are you trying to tell me? Are congratulations in order?"

"Not quite. Would you like to go up now?"

"To our cozy corner? Of course, unless there is something else you'd like to do."

"No. I'd like to visit awhile." A moment later, when they were crossing the lobby and Terry was moving toward the staircase, she said, "Come this way—we're riding."

"Can't you do one short flight any more?"

"It's fifteen flights," she corrected. "We're going up to my place where it's not quite so public."

Terry halted and stared. "But I say, Dad, I can't very well go to your room."

"Oh, yes, you can," she returned calmly. "It's quite all right," as he continued to stare in a puzzled fashion.

"Are you trying to compromise me? Don't you know the house dick will throw me out, if he catches me?"

"He'd better not try it. I hadn't thought about compromising you—perhaps I will. You're giving me an idea." She preceded him into the elevator.

THOUSANDS JAM OHIO HIGHWAYS, NINE LOSE LIVES

Spring-like Weather Lures Motorists; Six Injured In County Accidents.

Traffic accidents claimed at least nine victims in Ohio over the week-end as spring-like weather attracted thousands of motorists to the highways.

Two Mansfield residents were injured, neither seriously, when struck by automobiles Saturday night, and four persons were hurt in a collision of an automobile and truck at Shelby.

Most seriously injured in the county was Miss Irene Robinson, 15, of Tiro, who suffered a fractured pelvis in the Shelby crash Saturday night. Her condition was reported "satisfactory" today at Shelby Memorial hospital where she was taken following the accident.

Others who received slight injuries in the crash were Forrest DeLong, Shelby, driver of the car in which Miss Robinson was a passenger, and William Willey and Miss Pauline Sonnanstine, both of near Shelby, also passengers in the DeLong car.

Collide at Intersection.

The automobile, police reports said, collided with a truck driven by Joe Snyder of Shelby at an intersection.

Injured in Mansfield were John Robb, 53, of 601 Heineman boulevard, who was treated at General hospital for lacerations on his nose, head and right knee, and Miss Grace Boyer, 16, of 9 Glenwood boulevard, who suffered minor cuts on her face and body.

Robb was struck at the corner of South Main street and Luther place by a car driven by John Fenton, Akron, police said. Fenton stopped immediately and was not held.

Miss Boyer was struck and knocked down at West First and Mulberry streets by an Arbaugh grocery truck driven by Larry Skeese, 80 Atchison avenue, police reports said. Both Robb and Miss Boyer returned to their homes after receiving treatment.

Forecasts today predicted a continuation of fair and mild weather tonight and Tuesday, with the mercury due to rise slowly Tuesday.

Readings of around 60 degrees set all-time records for Feb. 6 in several northern Ohio cities yesterday, while the high at Mansfield was 57, according to Otto Sprunger, official observer.

A reading of 60 degrees here Saturday afternoon marked one of the highest readings ever marked up in Mansfield in early February. The low last night was 32 above zero.

Restaurant Looted — Frank Nazerick, proprietor of the Carioca restaurant, 78 Wayne street, reported to police that thieves broke into his establishment sometime Saturday night and looted a cigaret machine.

COXEY SAYS AGE 'IMAGINATION'

'General,' 84 Today, Asserts He Never Counts Years; He'll Keep Fighting.

ally has proposed that:

States and subdivisions issue non-interest bearing 25-year bonds, deposit them with the federal government as security. The government would print money to the extent of the bonds, return it to the states and subdivisions deducting one per cent for cost of printing and handling Then use the money to put the unemployed to work, and retire the bonds annually at the rate of four per cent, without interest. Retire the same amount of money at the same time

A pamphleteer, perennial candidate for public office mayor of Massillon from 1931 to 1933, Coxey lobbied in Washington for six years "at my own expense" for his unorthodox financial views

The "general," formerly a quarry owner and now co-holder of an option on a mine near Silver City N. M., is a determined objector to the Federal Reserve banking system

One of Coxey's axioms is "money must flow freely from hand to hand just as goods and labor flows"

His famous "march" on Washington—he led another in 1914—was to urge the government to print money to pay three million unemployed for a proposed program of road construction and other public improvements. "That was the first incentive to good road building in this country," Coxey says with quiet satisfaction

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1938.

Talk is cheap—probably because the supply is so much greater than the demand.

Kentucky's Governor Chandler tells of firing nine thousand state employes "without creating a vacancy"—but that was in Kentucky.

High among modern examples of mixed metaphors is that of the orator who, in a tirade against excessive taxes, sprung this one: "They'll keep on shearing the sheep that lays the golden egg until the well runs dry!"

When Boy Scouts Become Men.

THIS week's observance of the twenty-eighth anniversary of the introduction of the Boy Scout movement into the United States sees membership in the organization passing the 1,100,000 mark, for the first time.

Twenty-eight years of existence also gives opportunity to better observe the effectiveness of Scouting in contributing to adult good citizenship, for many of the Boy Scouts of earlier days have now taken their place in community life, and in their work—and consistently fine attitude toward the responsibilities of citizenship—they are exemplifying the benefits of Scout training.

No more desirable situation in a community such as Mansfield could be wished for than that every boy might for several years, be brought within the influence of Scout training, that he would live up to the principles and teachings of that organization, and that he would conform his later life to a broadened vision of the things for which Scouting stands.

While the Scout program was originally intended for boys of 12, or older, a more recent development has been the Cub department, for boys of 9, 10 and 11, who are given preliminary training suitable to those ages, and the Sea Scouts, planned for older boys and intended to provide entertainment, instruction and adventure for boys above the age of 15.

Mansfield and vicinity has been privileged to enjoy a constantly expanding Boy Scout program, under capable direction and with excellent results, but there is still a vast field of opportunity in this community for a further display of adult interest, not only in financial support but also in volunteer leadership by the type of men whose own conduct and habits are such as to fit into this work.

Growth in Scouting for the year 1937 over the preceding year was 5.6 per cent. The greatest percentage of growth was in Cubbing, which gained 30.5 per cent.

When the problem of reducing juvenile delinquency is being considered, it should be realized that there is no better approach to solution than by aiding, in every possible way, further expansion of Boy Scouting—for a Boy Scout is "trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent"—and when a boy or man possesses those qualities there need be no fear of the outcome..

Following a Good Example.

SLUMS have a tendency to spread out, infecting what had previously been "good neighborhoods — good housing groups also tend to spread and improve neighborhoods. This has been demonstrated in both public and private projects.

A good example is the Hillside project in New York, a pioneer enterprise handled with private capital some years ago. Built in a very unattractive area, it attracted so much new construction that in a few years it was the center of a prosperous settlement of 15,000 people.

How a modern housing group will affect adjacent slums appears in a Cleveland project, completed a few months ago and filled with 650 families. A newspaper investigator reports that the residents take pride in keeping their apartments clean, bright and pleasant, and the children are surprisingly well behaved. Moreover, the influence of order, cleanliness and good taste spreads quickly across the street and through neighboring blocks. Old stores paint up and build new fronts. Buildings are remodeled and bakeries and beauty parlors are established. Ramshackle restaurants are demolished. New building starts and spreads surprisingly. Neighbors try to live up to the new example. Thus the housing group becomes the center of new development.

Richmond Plan Wins Approval.

ONE solution for the unemployment problem, used successfully in Richmond, Va., is beginning to attract national attention. Apparently it needs only to be suggested, to meet popular approval. In a test vote taken throughout the country by the Institute of Public Opinion, it is approved by 85 per cent of the voters, with every section at least 80 per cent in favor of it.

It is a procedure that appeared in many places during the worst of the big depression, but never before undertaken in so formal a way as it is now in the Virginia capital.

There is a Citizens Service Exchange which enables idle workmen to produce co-operatively for their own use. Men and women in many occupations produce things they are able to make and pass them around to each other through the exchange system, thus obtaining most of the necessaries of life. Their work, it is explained, doesn't enter the market, and they are not competing with business men. It amounts to primitive production and barter, with modern organization.

Exchange of Pests.

WE GOT the pestiferous little English sparrow from England, but now we're even. We've sent them poison ivy. Several persons in Gloucestershire recently developed a queer skin ailment, the rash and blisters accompanied by much irritation and varying degrees of fever.

Local doctors were about to give up the diagnosis when a horticulturist of wide experience came along and announced that the victims had ivy poisoning.

We hope the British have better luck getting rid of this undesirable immigrant than we have had with the English sparrow.

One Maryland village boasts of having a colonial tavern in which Washington never slept—but others appear to provide the original mattress.

As one of the new British admirals, the Earl of Cork should be able to float along nicely.

Explaining How the New Housing Law Works

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—The new housing law may, as expected, initiate a tremendous national building boom in the spring, as soon as the weather begins to be mild enough to permit a start on that class of construction.

If so, it will be fine for a while. The building industry is a big one. Its prosperity will react upon other industries, making them prosperous, too.

The appeal to the average family to move into its own home, abandoning mere tenancy, also is likely to be popular.

But in the long run? I wonder!

HOW LAW WORKS

The theory is that these new homes will be neat and comfortable, but rather modest little affairs.

Each is to cost around $6,000. That is not the exact figure, but it is the most frequently mentioned. Presumably the would-be home owner does not possess $6,000, but perhaps he can scare up $600. Probably, however, his credit is not good enough to enable him to finance the other $5,400.

That is where the housing law comes in. The government insures the $5,400. With the government's backing, his bank will carry him.

THE COST

He has 25 years to pay off the $5,400 in.

Three hundred months, at $18 monthly!

It sounds easy at the present rate of city rentals.

Yet $18 monthly isn't quite all. There is an additional 5 per cent interest charge, and a .25 per cent charge for mortgage insurance. In 25 years 5.25 per cent interest mounts up like sixty. It amounts, in short, not to $18 monthly for the 25-year period, but to $32.30 monthly:.

OTHER COSTS

That isn't quite all, either.

Initially the prospective home-creator must pay what are described as "certain small fees"—$100 to $200.

Therefore, his preliminary payment is not exactly $600—it is $700 to $800 and, on this investment, for 25 years he loses interest.

Moreover, he pays taxes, insurance, water, electricity and gas rates—which he would not have to pay as a tenant. He has to pay for upkeep and for fuel—which again, he would not have to provide as a tenant.

He has to pay for keeping his grass cut and snow off his sidewalk.

Gosh!—the home-owner's incidentals are multiple.

ON OUTSKIRTS

Here's another thing:

The urban worker, desiring a home, cannot hope to possess it in the city of his employment.

He must get out into the remote suburbs.

He cannot hope to live close to his job, except as a tenant; real estate prices are too high.

All right, he hunts a home out in some remote district, distant from his job's locale.

Immediately the cost of transportation, between his home and his job, mounts. It doubles.

STEWART'S VIEW

Between an urban rental of, say, $40 monthly, and a suburban home-buyer's house and lot at $18 monthly, there may seem to be a great gulf fixed.

Essentially it's hooey.

Listen, World!

Should Women Serve on Juries?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

HOW ABOUT FEMALE JURORS? ARE THEY COOL, WELL-BALANCED, LOGICAL . . . OR HIGHLY EMOTIONAL AND UNREASONABLE?

Doris Mosebach tossed that bomb into our family circle, and the roof's been heaving ever since. Want a little excitement? Then show either of the following letters to The Gang.

"Dear Elsie Robinson—

"I advise Doris Mosebach to have a little more respect for her own sex. From actual experience as a trial juror in the Los Angeles county civil courts, I have found that women jurors are usually better fitted for jury duty than men. When it comes to sickly sentimentality and crooked reasoning, the men take all the honors.

"One male juror wanted to render a verdict against an insured bus company solely because they were wealthy and it was our duty to stick them to the limit. Another man wanted to give an old lady a huge sum of money for an unproved injury, just because the mean old railroad company had forced her to come to court instead of settling with her immediately. One man reported so drunk he was unfit for service. His little spree cost the county a great deal of money. One prosperous gentleman suggested that we withhold a verdict for several hours so we could get a free meal.

"Women are more conscientious than men. They have a keener sense of responsibility toward society and a greater respect for law. They are not only better informed on social problems but are quicker to detect fraud and trickery. Of course there are many stupid women jurors and many intelligent men jurors. The fault lies not with either sex but with the system.

"Prospective jurors should be subjected to more rigid examination. They should be made to witness two or more court trials and be tested on their understanding of those cases. If the tests were designed to determine the emotional balance of the jurors, a lot of sentimental sob-sisters of both sexes would be eliminated, and poor blind justice would have at least an even break."

Opal Taylor—age 23
Manhattan Beach, Cal.
($10 prize winner)

* * *

SOUNDS wonderful, Opal. But here's Pearl Allgood of Bell Gardens, Cal., who says 'tisn't so!

"Dear Elsie Robinson—

"I heartily agree that women aren't fit for jury duty, I know whereof I speak, for I served on a jury myself, and when it was over, I was emotionally squeezed dry. I agonized over every criminal convicted and ran the gamut of remorse, indecision and joy over every one released!

"When the jurors go to deliberate, you will find the men sitting quietly, talking the case over. But the women!!!!..Some of them are sobbing over the prisoner's wife or mother...others are shrilly accusing the men jurors of being 'brutes'...and the rest of the girls will be exchanging cooking recipes and snapshots of their children.

"I WILL ADMIT FRANKLY THAT I DID NOT HEAR HALF THE EVIDENCE. I WAS TOO BUSY IMAGINING MY BOY IN THE CRIMINAL'S PLACE AND TRYING THE CASE THROUGH A HEARTBROKEN MOTHER'S EYES!

"I saw one woman hold out for 48 hours, not because she thought the defendant guilty, but because she did not like his attorney and, to use her own words, 'would not help him win a case if we have to stay here until Christmas.'

"Men try cases with their heads, not their hearts. They go home, sleep soundly and awake clear-headed. But the woman does not use her head at all. At the end of the day every nerve is screaming—she's a nervous wreck for fear she may do wrong. I lost ten pounds during my three months of jury duty and wouldn't go through that experience again for $50 a day. KEEP WOMEN OFF JURIES, I SAY!"

Mrs. Pearl Allgood—aged 28
Bell Garden, Cal.
($10 prize winner)

A grand battle, but still I'm wondering—WHO'S THE WINNER?

AND now a short but powerful sermon on "THE AMERICAN TRAGEDY—OUR OUTDOOR BILLBOARDS." And the preacher is only 13—Allan Segal of Los Angeles, Calif.

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"The world's most beautiful scenery is here in America. But how many of our 130,000,000 ever see it, blocked as it is by a monstrous conglomeration of wood, glue, paper and paint which informs us that we should use 'BLA-BLA FOR A BEAUTIFUL SMILE!'

"Ogden Nash once wrote , in more than jest—

'I think that I shall never see
'A Billboard lovely as a tree;
'Perhaps until the Billboards fall
'I'll never see a tree at all!'

"Something beside humor lies in those words. I once heard someone say that 'billboards are everyone's pleasure. The coloring is gay, the wording is enjoyable.' But I wonder how can ANYONE get enjoyment from a sign that says, 'Fine funerals at lowest prices.'

"It pays to advertise. Every reliable establishment has a right to. But have they a right to hog the scenery? NO! AND PARTICULARLY NOT NOW, WHEN WE NEED BEAUTY AND INSPIRATION AS NEVER BEFORE."

"Due Process" Clause Raises Question.

—By LESLIE EICHEL

ASSOCIATE JUSTICE HUGO L. BLACK of the U. S. supreme court has raised the point that liberals had been hoping a justice would raise for years.

Justice Black, in a dissenting opinion, questioned whether the sponsors of the fourteenth amendment, ratified following the Civil war, intended the amendment to "protect" corporations against state laws to regulate them. The fourteenth amendment provides that no state may "deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law."

Said Justice Black: "The states did not adopt the amendment with knowledge of the sweeping meaning under its present construction.

"No section of the amendment gave notice to the people that if adopted, it would subject every state law and municipal ordinance affecting corporations (and all administrative options under them) to censorship of United States courts.

"No word in all this amendment gave any hint that its adoption would deprive the states of their long recognized power to regulate corporations."

Justice Black is correct.

HOW IT CAME ABOUT

It should be remembered that Big Business of the past had been smarting under restrictions placed by the Jacksonians. The Civil war, as is the case during wars, gave them free rein again.

But Big Business feared Lincoln. The Emancipator was assassinated, just as he was about to carry out liberal post-war reforms.

Big Business (of that day) swept into control again.

It had Washington within its grasp, even to the extent of obtaining impeachment proceedings against bluff President Andrew Johnson, whom history now records as a liberal.

The state legislatures remained Jacksonian, anti-Big Business.

Thus Big Business set out to obtain supremacy of the federal courts over the state legislatures.

How?

Well, some amendments to the constitution had been promised to the Negro.

Into one of those amendments, intended to provide safeguard for the body of a person, it was planned to write an innocent-looking clause that could be construed as protecting corporations as well as legislative restrictions.

And that is how and why the "due process" clause found its way into the U. S. constitution.

It was not written in, or approved, by the Fathers of the Country, who devised the original constitution. It was put in as a "joker" (to be discovered later) by an Ohio corporation lawyer who was a member of the house of representatives—John A. Bingham.

BINGHAM EXPLAINS

Some years later Bingham, speaking in congress, explained why he inserted this clause, which was to upset more laws than any other clause in the constitution.

Charles A. and Mary R. Beard tell the story in their "The Rise of American Civilization:"

"Bingham had read, he said, in the case of Barron versus the mayor and council of Baltimore, how the city had taken private property for public use, as alleged without compensation, and how Chief Justice Marshall had been compelled to hold that there was no redress in the supreme court of the United States—no redress simply because the first ten amendments to the constitution were limitations on congress, not on the states.

"Deeming this hiatus a grave legal defect in the work of the Fathers, Bingham designed 'word for word and syllable for syllable' the cabalistic clause of the fourteenth amendment in order, he asserted, that 'the poorest man in his hovel . . . may be as secure in his person and property as the prince in his palace or the king upon his throne.'

"Hence the provision was to apply not merely to former slaves struggling for civil rights, but to all persons, rich and poor, individuals and corporations, under the national flag . . ."

"Republican lawmakers restored to the constitution the protection for property which Jacksonian judges had whittled away and made it more sweeping in its scope by forbidding states, in blanket terms, to deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law.

"By a few words skillfully chosen every act of every state and local government which touched adversely the rights of persons and property was made subject to review and liable to annulment by the supreme court at Washington, appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate for life and far removed from local feelings and prejudices."

ADOPTION FOUGHT

Some editors—not many—saw that a virtual revolution in the fundamental policy of the constitution would take place if the amendment with this clause in it was ratified—and fought it.

Tremendous pressure was used on recalcitrant legislatures by big business and powerful political interest. The south, of course,, fiercely opposed to the amendment, was forced to ratify under military pressure.

The history of that period is nothing of which to be proud. The amendment finally was adopted. (Although it may be questioned, in this day, whether the adoption was obtained legally. The methods used certainly would invalidate any action if used now).

"Thus," write the Beards, "the triumphant Republican minority, in possession of the federal government and the military power, under the sanction of constitutional forms, subdued the states for all time to the unlimited jurisdiction of the federal supreme court."

Timely Editorial

Newspapers and the Police.

Several days ago, a new administration in the Knoxville police department announced that in order to get rid of "nosey" reporters it would deny newspapers all access to police blotters, warrants and other records. The use of radio squads aided in this because the reports of their operations were kept from the reporters, and the result was that the first newspapers knew of what was going on was when the cases came up in police court. In fact, the director of safety announced that the policy would be "Find out about it in police court."

Of course, Knoxville newspapers complained. And, of course, Knoxville city officials are backing down.

They would have backed down even if there had been no complaint from newspapers. They would have discovered that their chief ally in keeping Knoxville free of criminals was to be found in the newspapers.

If there is one thing that the criminal element dislikes is to to have their misdeeds brought to the attention of the public.

Newspaper men can generally be trusted. They do not break in on an investigation and spoil the scent. They find that their best work is the result of co-operation with the investigating officers. They know that their obligation to the public is just as high as that of the police officer. —Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

Federal Methods of Execution.

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—One of the first questions to reach Washington after a murderer or kidnaper is captured by J. Edgar Hoover's G-men is: "How does the federal government execute murderers?"

Until last summer the answer was "hanging." Now the answer is that the method is as varied as the methods in the 48 states. On June 19, 1937, the president signed an act providing that "the manner of inflicting the punishment of death shall be the manner prescribed by the laws of the state within which the sentence is imposed."

Thus, in Nevada and Arizona a prisoner may be gassed to death. A choice of hanging or shooting is given prisoners in Utah. Several southern states provide for hanging in public, a spectacle designed—with debatable success—to throw fear into the hearts of the wayward. In states like Michigan, which don't have capital punishment, the federal prisoner may be executed in a neighboring state.

* * *

Gruesome Business.

THE new execution law was demanded as a result of a federal hanging about two years ago when an Indian convict dangled on a rope for 33 minutes before he died.

Arizona already had replaced hanging with the gas chamber after a hanging in which a woman's head was jerked off. Thus the gas chamber was available to execute the Indian, but the U. S. marshal could not use it because federal law prescribed hanging.

Gassing presumes to be fast as well as scientific, but spectators report that the plunk of the ball of chemicals into the pan of acid and the subsequent sizzling while poison gas is generated go on for endless seconds before a paralyzing whiff reaches the throat of the convict.

Eye Witness Account.

WYOMING once had, and Idaho still has, a hanging device which requires the victim to stand on a trap door while a trickle of water fills a tub which springs a latch and drops him to the end of the rope.

Utah murderers usually choose shooting, although it is recorded that one insisted on a scaffold because it cost more.

We witnessed the shooting of one Pedro Cano in the Utah prison and can report that the actual execution is fast but the preliminaries drag. Cano was taken before daylight from his cell on an upper floor. On each landing as he marched down he shouted, "Good bye, all my friends, my time is come." The imprisoned men screamed and beat on their cell doors with pots and buckets.

Outside Cano was hooded and strapped in a chair against the prison wall just opposite a work shop, one of whose windows was covered by a black cloth slit down the middle. Behind it were the executioners.

Shootings are at official sunrise and as the time came a voice inside the shop said slowly: "Get ready . . . aim . . . fire." Not until the blast did it occur to us that Cano also had heard that interminable "Get ready . . . aim . . . fire."

Percy Crosby is exception to the general rule that artists take little notice of politics. He not only takes lively interest but spends enormous amounts in telegraph tolls and for newspaper space to express violent opposition. However, Crosby is not a crusader but an unusually easy-going fellow until he thinks the average man is getting the worst of it; then he begins shooting from both hips. He has published a half dozen books at own expense to express his views, and once bought an entire page in every New York newspaper.

Few know that the once Belasco and now Theater Guild star Ina Claire was a Shiela Barrett of her early day. Her mimicry in vaudeville was second only to the child wonder, Little Elsie, who became Elsie Janis. Miss Claire's remembered impersonations were of Harry Lauder, Eva Tanguay, Alice Lloyd, Ethel Levy, Geraldine Farrar, Frances Starr, Jane Cowl and Billie Burke. Mimics have often graduated to dramatic and comedy roles. Cissie Loftus, when she abandoned mimicry, was able to run away with several plays in her character roles and the more recent Eddie Garr has shown some talent in straightaway characterizations.

The circus will scarcely be the circus this year without the fabulous Dexter Fellows. He was among less than a dozen for whom I stifled my telephone phobia to answer when he rang up. There was no resisting Dex. He symbolized romantic vagabondage to those of us ink-stained and harnessed to desks. To ignore him in Spring would be like shooting a robin off the lawn. His formula was sheer magic. He never wrote a line. All he had to do to euchre us out of space was to tell journalistic wretches he was in town and we unlimbered our typewriters literally to bury him and his exhibit in an avalanche of adjectives. Dexter was especially good copy because he did not care how you poked fun at him so long as the circus got a break. The most hilarious stories Frank Ward O'Malley ever wrote were written around Fellows.

Also not many pamphleteers have been so extravagantly publicised the past few months as Maury H. B. Paul, the Cholly Knickerbocker of the social page. He was profiled in two parts in The New Yorker, panegyrized in the Elsa Maxwell serial in Harper's Bazaar, glorified in two current novels and was included for several pages in Cecil Beaton's photographic "Scrap-Book" of celebrities. A many-faceted fellow, he is a dandy peg for romanzas. But his chroniclers did not stress his indefatigable industry. No other reporter turns in so much copy nor half so readable. He has made a career and fortune out of what to many has been a routine job.

Health Commissioner Acts to Check Spread of Smallpox; 4 New Cases Reported.

Rehder, will have to remain under quarantine for 17 days, the incubation period of the disease.

Four new cases were discovered yesterday, but no further cases had been reported at 1:30 p m. today.

Aid from the state health department was expected today following a visit here Saturday by two specialists from Columbus who told Dr. Roy C. Rehder, health commissioner, that they would recommend to the state board that assistance be sent to Mansfield to conduct the inoculation of all school children in Richland county.

Dr. Rehder said that Dr. Finley Van Orsall and Dr. W. J. Smith, both of the communicable disease division of the state health department, verified several questionable cases as smallpox Saturday and urged the immunization of all persons in the county who have not been successfully vaccinated within the past five years.

Sets Up Office At Simpson.

Dr. Rehder and a corps of nurses set up temporary quarters at John Simpson today. When they have completed the immunizations there, they plan to move to Hedges and Newman schools.

Meanwhile Dr. Paul Baird, assistant commissioner, was conducting vaccinations at the health department offices on the third floor of the city building. A notice was posted there that the offices would be open until 9 p. m. daily for those persons who wanted to be vaccinated.

Dr. Rehder urged all industrial firms, offices and stores to follow the policy of the Mansfield-Leland hotel where J. R. Hodgson, manager, voluntarily insisted that all his 140 employes report to the health department for treatment.

"We insisted on all employes being vaccinated as a safety measure for the general public," Hodgson said.

After more than 12 hours of continuous inoculating yesterday, Dr. Rehder and Dr. Baird, who were assisted by six health department nurses, gave the last vaccination at 10 p. m. Dr. Rehder said that another 3,000 units of the serum had been ordered late yesterday. More than 2,500 units have been used already since the first outbreak of the disease last Thursday.

Nearly 1,000 units had been ordered by Dr. O H. Schettler for the purpose of immunizing Westinghouse employes today No check has been made on the number of vaccinations given by private physicians who are being supplied the vaccine through the health department.

Men, women and children waited in the long line yesterday at the health department with bared arms. Even babies in the arms of anxious parents were among the throng that crowded the corridors of the city hall all day.

A first aid station was hastily set up in an adjoining room when several youngsters fainted They were treated by nurses and then took their places in line.

The latest cases reported were Glenn M. Touby, 203 Helen avenue; Mrs. Goldie Callihan, East Mansfield; Margaret Lauer, 13, and her sister Helen, 3, both daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Lauer, 455 Wayne street. Margaret is a student at the Simpson high school.

At Ashland, the danger of a smallpox epidemic which was feared two weeks ago has been overcome through a timely immunization program, Dr. R. P. Bogniard, city health director, reported today. Only one case of smallpox was under quarantine there.

fonts of adjectives to find abusive words to apply to the tri-partite notes, calling them: "Absurd, unreasonable, insolent, haughty, arrogant, and intimidating."

"It is hardly necessary to add that Japan will reject, point blank, this insolent attempt to interfere with Japan's rights," said Nivhi Nichi, summing up the general opinion.

The belief prevailed, however, that Japan would reply to Washington, London, and Paris, without baring any naval secrets.

Blame for the world's greatest naval construction race was put by the foreign office spokesman first on Britain, then the United States

"The Japanese people believe that the naval race was started by Britain, when she commenced expansion in 1937 with a $7,500,000,000 program," he said.

"This was followed by the American proposal to increase warships to 20 per cent over the maximum figure stipulated in the 1936 treaty (of London).

"If that program is carried out, the United States must be deemed to be following Britain's initiative in the naval race.

"Regarding the notes' proposals, I must refrain from any further comment."

With their recommendation that Japan maintain silence, the navy officials were due to meet Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye, Foreign Minister Koki Hirota, and Navy Minister Matsumasa Yonai today.

These officials are expected to approve the navy chiefs' stand and drafting of the note to the three inquisitors will start shortly.

Hull's View On Arms Cut Stirs Comment.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary Hull's expressed willingness to take part in any general arms reduction aroused widespread interest in the capital today, because it followed closely his demand that Japan disclose her naval building program

Amid unofficial reports that Tokyo officials had decided against complying, Hull said in a radio address last night:

"While compelled, in a world in which increased construction of armaments is a regrettable fact, to render adequate our military and naval establishment, we are ready at any time to join with other nations in a common effort to bring about a general limitation and reduction of armaments."

The secretary of state spoke of "the alarming disintegration of all international relationships which the world has recently witnessed."

"The most fundamental tenets of international law have been flouted with incredible disdain Resort to armed force is again emerging both as a method of settling international disputes and as an instrument of predatory policy," he said.

Hull on Saturday requested Japan to make known by Feb 20 any plans to build battleships above the 35,000-ton limit set by the 1936 London Naval Treaty

If larger ships were being built, Hull said, the United States would be forced to compete Great Britain and France sent similar notes.

Semi-official navy data disclosed that the demands of the three powers were backed by tentative plans for building 11 capital ships this year, in addition to 10 already under construction.

Fight Over U. S. Naval Program Warming Up.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Diplomatic developments intensified a congressional fight developing today against increased naval authorizations unless President Roosevelt clarifies his foreign policy.

Week-end devopments were expected to furnish much new material for questioning Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, who returns before the house naval affairs committee for the sixth successive day of testimony on the president's proposed 20 per cent increase in the navy's fighting strength.

300 AT FORUM

Cleveland, Mansfield Doctors Address Young People.

More than 300 young men and women attended the Community Christian Youth forum at the First Presbyterian church last night when Dr. Neil T. McDermott, Cleveland, and Dr. F. J. Heringhaus led the discussions.

Speaking on "The Nervous and Mental Disorders of Youth," Dr. McDermott said.

"We cannot overlook the importance of the reactions of the child and parent from birth to the adolescent age, as the child has most of his decisions made by the parent, and these decisions largely influence the child's future life. All complexes are not bad, but only when they prompt youth to do things that are anti-social and immoral do they constitute a serious problem."

The Youth Forum will meet next Sunday night at the Central Methodist Episcopal church. Dr. Chester Oxley, pastor of the First Baptist church, Granville, and pastor to the students at Denison university, will lead the conference.

A Farmer's Diary

Feb. 5.

ALL DAY today we had definite signs of spring. The air was balmy and blew from the south. Long streaks of clouds floated high. No rain. I felt the delicate warm of the sun with the impulse of spring behind it.

I walked to the edge of the woods. From my neighbor's plum tree came the notes of a song sparrow. The ground was soft. I looked back at the tracks I had made; they were filled with water Within the woods the soil was firmer. Just ahead I heard something moving among the leaves. I thought it was a gray squirrel, until with shrill notes, four jays flew up into the branches. They scolded harshly as they saw me examine the fresh holes they had dug in the leaves and dirt. Some crows heard their cries and flapped away from their own place of feeding

I came out of the woods and moved slowly down the road to the west Then I heard a robin. This was incredible. But presently I heard it again, and there on a wild apple tree was perched a pair of them. Spring is indeed here.

Went inland to a secluded spring that flows from a hollow under a large hill. There were slender willows along its course, with their white seed balls; there were misty purple stalks of wild raspberry; tender succulent green watercress. As I reached the spring, I saw four green frogs jump from the bank into the water and hide under a deep covering of leaves. A few bubbles came to the surface" corps of clerks and stenographers.

"Just because I have come south for the winter is no reason why I should stop working," he explained to reporters who met him at the station.

Despite his advanced years, Firestone remained exceedingly active until the last, and only recently he announced a huge expansion program for the Firestone Tire and Rubber company.

Firestone, who built one of the largest rubber kingdoms in the world, was born Dec. 20, 1868, a few miles from the little rural community of Columbiana, Ohio, the son of a prosperous farmer, Benjamin Firestone, and Catherine Flickinger Firestone.

He was a typical farm boy of those days, receiving an early education in the public schools of Columbiana county, and, following graduation from high school, attended business college and later, Mount Union college at nearby Alliance, Ohio.

In 1895, he married Idabelle Smith of Jackson, Mich., and they have five sons, Harvey S., jr., Russell A., Leonard K., Raymond C., and Roger S., and one daughter, Elizabeth Idabelle.

Firestone began his business career as a bookkeeper for a Columbus, Ohio, coal company, but he wanted to be a salesman, and that venture, during which he peddled patent medicines, ended disastrously.

Returning to Columbus, young Firestone obtaine a job with a carriage-making firm in the days when the old-fashioned hard-rubber tire was making its debut as standard equipment on pleasure carriages. When this firm went out of business, Firestone conceived the idea of organizing a tire company.

Organized Tire Firm.

His impressive career in the rubber industry started in a small workship in Chicago, Ill., where he organized the Victor Rubber Co., which existed from 1896 to 1900.

In that year, he sold his business for a reported cash net profit of $45,000. A short time later, he became acquainted with James A Sweinhart, inventor of a new method of attaching tires to the rims of wheels. Going to Akron, which has since become the world's center of the rubber industry, Firestone, Swinehart and a group of mutual friends organized the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co.

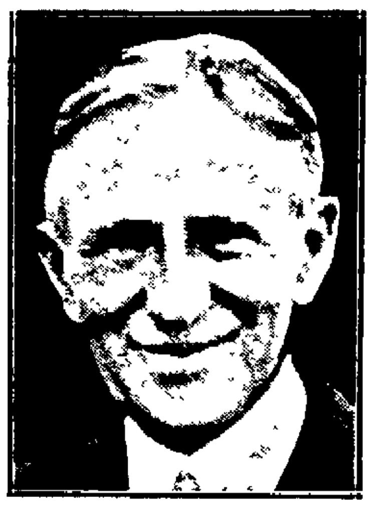
The growth and success of this company were assured when, five years later, an order was received from Henry Ford, a pioneer in the automobile business at that time. Ford had just announced the expected manufacture of 2,000 cars at a price of $500 each. The Firestone company built the tires for those autos, and has made most of the tires used as standard equipment on Ford cars since then.

The Firestone Tire and Rubber Co started with 17 employes, reaching its peak employment of nearly 20,000 during the boom days of 1920. Firestone was the first president and served in that capacity until 1932, when he was elected chairman of the board of directors. His eldest son, Harvey S., jr., succeeded his father as president

The second son, Russell A., was elevated to vice president and director. The three younger sons all became associated with the company to "work their way up" following graduation from college. All five were graduated from Princeton university.

The Firestone family also controls 32 subsidiaries, and the vast amount of property includes 1,000,000 acres of land in Liberia and further holdings in other lands.

Firestone Dies



Harvey S. Firestone, 69, founder of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company at Akron was found dead in bed today at his summer home in Miami Beach, Fla. His body is to be brought to Akron for funeral services and burial. He left only recently for Florida.

A JAY-WALKER is a menace to himself and others. Many of us jaywalk without realizing the possible consequence. The lights at the intersection are for your protection and for the protection of others—use them and abide by their signals. The seconds you save by crossing in the middle of the block or against the light is entirely too costly. Watch the lights—it will pay!

Don't Neglect Your Child's Cold

Don't let chest colds or croupy coughs go untreated. Rub Children's Musterole on child's throat and chest at once. This milder form of regular Musterole penetrates, warms, and stimulates local circulation. Floods the bronchial tubes with its soothing, relieving vapors. Musterole brings relief naturally because it's a "counter-irritant"—NOT just a salve. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. Three strengths: Regular, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong.

From The Beach To The Ball Room In Fashions

It's a far cry from the daily dip in the briny ocean to the dance floor of the balmy southern resort. We go into the water with the minimum of clothing—the very form-fitting and abbreviated maillot or one-piece suit being very fashionable as well as very practical for the swimmer. The popular maillot style is one-piece in a novelty wool knit flecked in tweedy effect Contrasting belt and cross shoulder straps of twisted wool braid are ably supported in decoration by matching bands of two little patch pockets and a bow at the neckline. For tropic nights the glamor girl wears this gown of brown chiffon shot with gold lame and worn over a gold satin slip. The skirt is 30 yards around the hem.

PREVENT COLD FEET

For extra warmth in winter, place a pair of all-wool double blankets below the under sheet on your bed (on top of mattress pad and under lower sheet. This home-made heat pad device is kind to sensitive backs and cold feet and will obviate the necessity of so many heavy top blankets.

And for that white evening dress that you have worn several times, try freshening it with gold—either jewelry, flowers or some other medium like braid or ribbon.
